VANCOUVER (CP) — Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi was fined $1,000 and costs today and Seattle contractor C. W. Thornton was sentenced to prison for contempt of court.

Mr. Justice T. W. Norris passed the sentences on charges brought by Burton Glazier of Seattle in January in connection with a Highways Department payment to a contracting firm.

Mr. Justice Norris did not specify in court the length of Thornton's term nor the reasons for judgment.

He accused Thornton of "wilful contempt" of an injunction granted Oct. 29, 1959, by Mr. Justice Norris. Mr. Gaglardi was accused of aiding and abetting Thornton.

U.S. Slaps Trade Ban Against Cuba

(Times News Services)

WASHINGTON — The United States today slapped Fidel Castro with a drastic trade embargo, banning sales to Cuba of most commodities except some foods and medicine.

'Invasion' In Days Says Fidel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) — Premier Fidel Castro has notified the General Assembly he expects a "large-scale invasion" to be mounted against Cuba from the United States, "within the next few days," it was officially disclosed today.

The charge was contained in a memorandum explaining Castro's request that the General Assembly take up immediately on its agenda "a complaint by the revolutionary government of Cuba regarding the various plans of aggression and acts of intervention being executed by the United States."

The memorandum mentioned the U.S. trade embargo slapped on Cuba at noon today as one of the signs that the invasion was imminent. Another "proof," it said, was the state department's recommendation to U.S. dependents to leave the island.

THREE-WAY PLOT

The memorandum said the alleged invasion attempt had been plotted out by the U.S. State Department, the Pentagon and "U.S. monopolies."

"According to reliable information in the possession of the Cuban authorities (it) will be attempted within the next few days," it said.

The Castro statement left unclear whether the alleged invasion was expected to be an official United States military operation with uniformed soldiers or an attack by private financial and moral support from the U.S. government. Castro has charged many times he expects U.S. marines to attack Cuba.

The document said the alleged invasion plot and other alleged U.S. "aggressive designs" were based on "the mendacious pretext" that Cuba is a base of international communism.

The statement said the danger was all the more because Cuba allegedly was being made a part of overall U.S. strategy against the Soviet Union.

Tranquillizers Used As 'Baby-Sitters'

TORONTO (CP) — The Star quotes a Toronto doctor as saying some physicians and parents are using tranquillizers as baby-sitters and some doctors are causing diseases in children by their method of treatment.

It reports on an address today to the annual meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics by Dr. A. L. Chute, chief of pediatrics at the Hospital for Sick Children here. Dr. Chute is quoted as saying that several children have been admitted to the hospital suffering from the tranquillizer poisoning.

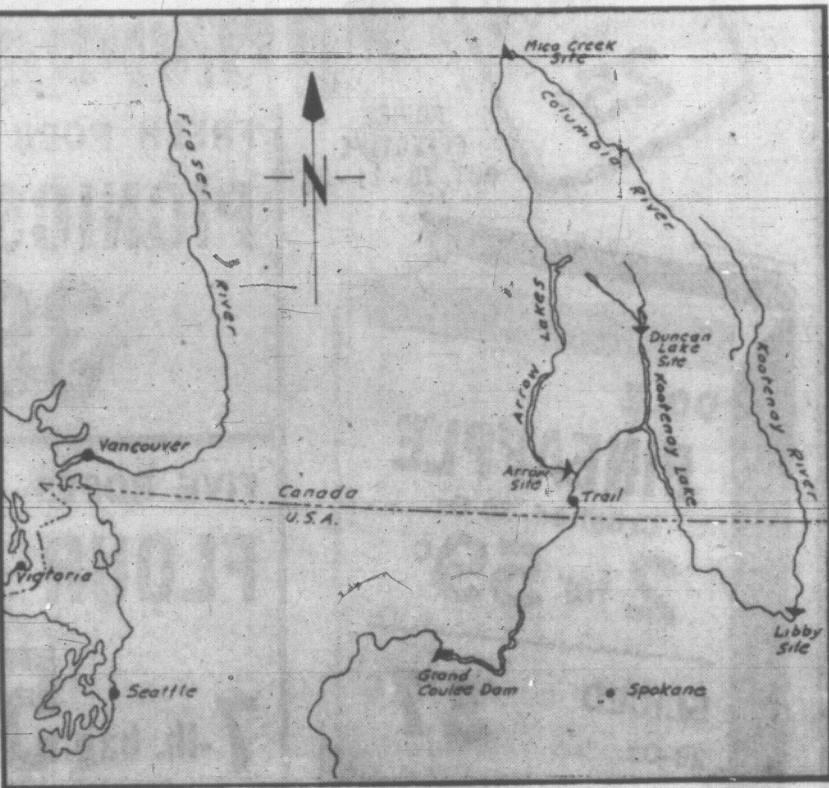

Tranquillizers were being employed with little regard to their real need and "certainly with even less to their possible dangers."

Children overtreated with these drugs developed a mild form of tetanus. There might be arching of the body, head-whirling sensations, inability to control facial muscles and inability to speak.

Columbia R. Pact Agreed; $458 Million Outlay in B.C.

KEY POINTS IN HYDRO PLAN

Biggest Project In Canada Since Seaway

By TOM GOULD
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Canada and the United States today exchanged diplomatic notes approving the report of their Columbia River negotiating teams as a basis for drafting a treaty.

At the same time, the government made public details of the negotiators' report, which contains a few surprises, but basically follows the foundation laid down earlier by the International Joint Commission.

It calls for Canada to provide 15.5 million acre feet of storage capacity through dams on the Canadian reaches of the Columbia, at Mica Creek, on the Big Bend, at the High Arrow damsite at the outlet of Lower Arrow Lake, and at Duncan Lake, at the head of Kootenay Lake.

The three dams will cost $344,599,000. All of the work will be paid for by B.C.

In return, the U.S. will deliver to the Canadian border at Oliver, B.C., one-half of the increase in power attributable to the Canadian storage. The amount is expected to be more than six billion kilowatt hours annually.

In addition, the U.S. will pay Canada for flood control benefits attributable to the Canadian dams, in a lump sum of an estimated $65,000,000.

$113 Million Transmission Line

To move the downstream benefit power from the border at Oliver, B.C., will have to construct a transmission line estimated to cost $113,823,000, making the total expenditure $458,422,000.

The whole project will be the biggest in Canada since the St. Lawrence Seaway.

For the first time, Ottawa made public its official offer to B.C. on financing. Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in announcing the Columbia plan that Ottawa is willing to raise half of the $344,599,000 cost of the three storage dams, to ease the burden on B.C.'s credit resources. Since the entire project will be self-liquidating, Ottawa expects to be repaid.

Mr. Diefenbaker said "preliminary and conservative estimates" place the cost of the downstream benefit power made available to Canada at less than four mills. This would make it about 2.5 mills cheaper than the domestic price of power in Vancouver today.

And he said the downstream benefit power would meet one-third of southern B.C.'s power needs up to 1972.

The projects involved in the international agreement are not the end of Columbia River development in Canada, only the beginning. The 15.5 million acre feet of storage contracted to the U.S. will not prejudice enormous at-site power generation.

According to Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton, who headed the Canadian negotiating team, total power production on this side of the border could eventually total 20.2 billion kilowatt hours annually, with the construction of a network of power dams and installation of at-site power at Mica Creek.

B.C. Veto Blocked Full Development

B.C.'s outright refusal to allow construction of a series of diversion dams on the Kootenay River, known as the Dorr-Bull River-Luxor plan, blocked full development of the Columbia Basin.

And it tied directly to one of the less favorable aspects of the progress report. That is, the U.S. was given a five-year period in which to decide whether it will build the controversial Libby Dam, at Libby, Montana.

The Dorr-Bull River-Luxor complex would have accomplished two things. First, it would have diverted the flood waters of the Kootenay into the Columbia, where they could be utilized for power production along the entire Canadian stretch of the river. Second, it would have satisfied the urgent U.S. need for flood protection at Bonners Ferry.

Since B.C. refused to consider building the diversion dams, on grounds they would flood out the last large unused block of agricultural land in the province, the U.S. had to be granted the right to construct Libby.

The five-year option arrangement is a clear indication of some U.S. reluctance to Libby, which is, at best, an uneconomic project. Within that period too, there could be a change of government, or a change of heart, in Victoria.

60-Year Treaty Term Recommended

Mr. Diefenbaker said the period of 60 years has been recommended by the negotiators as the term of the treaty.

Mr. Fulton said there is still "a lot of strenuous work ahead" in drafting a treaty, but that the worst is over. He paid tribute to Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, head of the Canadian section of the I.J.C., for laying the foundation of the agreement.

Three steps remain to be taken before a start on construction, which Mr. Fulton said is likely to begin in 1961. Water licences must be issued by the B.C. Water Controller, moving public hearings on the treaty must be drafted and approved by Congress and Parliament, and the final arrangement must be settled between B.C. and Ottawa.

Terms of the negotiators' report make it clear there will be no U.S. interference or interest in the actual construction of the three dams involved. The work will all be done by Canadians.

A deadline of 1970 has been set for completion of the three dams.

Wild West Style Bandits Shoot Up, Rob CNR Train

KINGSEY, Que. (CP) — Six masked bandits today held up a Canadian National Railways train in wild-west fashion, fired shots at the diesel locomotive and escaped with 15 sealed bags from the baggage car.

The bags were reported to have contained money destined for banks in Quebec City.

No passengers were molested but engineer W. Arnold of Richmond, Que., was slightly cut when the glass in his cab was shattered by a bullet. A CNR spokesman said the company had been told the bags contained about $3,000 in small currency.

Station agent Paul Guimont, 40, his wife and five-year-old son were kept under guard in their living quarters in the station by two of the hold-up men.

After the holdup the men tossed the bags into a panel truck and drove off.

Kingsey, a town of about 200, is 70 miles northeast of Montreal on the Montreal-Quebec line.

B.C. Hydro Plans Quick Start

B.C. Power Commission is going ahead immediately on first steps toward development of three Columbia River dams, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said today.

He called the draft treaty principles approved by Ottawa and Washington "a very fine deal so far as B.C. is concerned."

The agreement gives Canada a 60-year contract to provide the U.S. with three-quarters of the water storage it needs for hydro power.

It ties B.C. Power Commission to only three projects, giving it the option later to build for B.C. use a number of other dams on the Columbia.

It gives the U.S. only five years to decide on building its dam at Libby, Montana, which would involve some backing up of water in B.C.

By securing such a large proportion of storage needed by the U.S., Canada has made the Libby project pretty uneconomical from a cost-benefit basis.

START SOON

Mr. Williston said negotiations will have to begin "relatively soon" between B.C. and Ottawa on financing the B.C. Hydro projects, to cost a total of $458 million.

"There never has been a formalized offer," he said. But Ottawa has made it known she would make a loan to B.C.

Mr. Williston said B.C. wants it known that she feels entitled to the same deal Saskatchewan got for the South Saskatchewan dam—substantial federal grants toward construction.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — James Hagerty, White House press secretary, said today President Eisenhower plans to send a proposed Columbia River treaty to Congress in January shortly before he leaves office.

In a statement in the course of a coast-country tour, Eisenhower said the treaty was "heartening proof that two neighboring nations sharing a common resource can sit down together and plan a mutually advantageous development."

Let Small Nations Join In Arms Talks—Green

POLITICAL MANOEUVRE BY DE GAULLE

PARIS (Reuters) — A cabinet meeting under President Charles de Gaulle today armed Premier Michel Debre with authority to use a parliamentary manoeuvre designed to defeat mounting opposition to De Gaulle's plan for an independent French nuclear deterrent.

The cabinet authorized Debre to make the plan an issue of confidence in the de Gaulle regime during the current National Assembly debate.

It is the view of the Canadian government that in making preparations for restarting and facilitating disarmament negotiations, we should strive to strengthen the influence of the middle powers — and ultimately the United Nations — on these negotiations.

Urging the formation of technical and advisory committees, to work with the main negotiating body, which now is dormant, Green declared: "My main suggestion is that the main military powers have one role to play in disarmament, and the middle and smaller powers another, no less vital and important."

The 10-nation committee provides a workable forum for negotiations between the rival great power groupings. Any new negotiating body should preserve that two-sides concept.

"However, this two-sides approach to disarmament has been made at the expense of close ties with the United Nations."

"As a middle power, Canada is a strong believer in the importance of maintaining the MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A barber shop owned by admirers of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro was almost demolished by a bomb explosion today. Gabriel Ruiz, 35, and his son, David, 21, Cubans who operate the shop, were unhurt by the blast. They were sleeping in an apartment at the rear.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Canada today called for a new attack on disarmament on a scientific basis with renewed emphasis on help from the United Nations and middle and smaller powers.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green, in a major address to the UN assembly's 99-member political committee, pleaded for a return to East-West negotiations on the basis established by the 10-nation East-West committee whose work in Geneva collapsed last June in a Communist walkout.

Green addressed the political committee in an atmosphere of crisis after speeches by the Soviet Union, Pakistan and the United States. Soviet Premier Khrushchev had threatened to pull his representatives out of the committee unless progress is made on his proposal for general and complete disarmament.

The 10-nation committee collapsed in Geneva in June following the blowup of the summit conference in Paris. Formed by the great powers, its members were the U.S., Britain, France, Italy and Canada on the Western side and the Soviet Union, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Bulgaria and Romania for the Communist side.

The Soviet delegate blamed the West for the disarmament talks as a screen to cover up efforts to organize an international espionage system.

Zorin urged the political committee to get down to business at once on the task of working out an international disarmament treaty along the lines of a draft submitted last month by Soviet Premier Khrushchev. This approach already has been rejected by the West.

LONDON—The Earl of Craven complained today about London's vice.
In a letter to The Daily Mail, the earl said he took a walk through Soho to see for himself what was happening. "I was suitably horrified," he commented.
"Round every corner appeared the entrance to some club or other seductively lit and inviting erotic haunt, framed with pictures of sultry and sexy wenches, each one looking more over-ripe and ready for mischief than her neighbor," said his lordship.
He said the Place Pigalle and Montmartre in Paris offer the foreigner an obvious "business proposition," but in London seductive and easy vice.
"In England one gets the broader picture of enthusiastic amateurism—vice for the love of vice without the conflict of a battle of conscience."
"Small wonder that the Continentals and the French in particular regard English women as the epitome of feminine immorality."

LONDON—A police car answering a free emergency call from a pay telephone found the caller only wanted to be driven to his club, a court was told Tuesday.
The caller, Edward Morley Kilbaine, 57, was fined $2.80 and charged $2.10 costs for "maliciously wasting electricity" by making the free call.

NEW YORK—Actor Jason Robards Jr., accused by his wife of adultery with actress Lauren Bacall, smashed a news photographer's camera today in an attempt to protect "the woman I'm going to marry."

A divorce suit was filed by his wife, Rachel Taylor Robards, in state supreme court Tuesday. Mrs. Robards accused her husband and Miss Bacall of committing adultery several times in Miss Bacall's West Side apartment last July.

OTTAWA (CP)—Dave Thelen, Ottawa Rough Rider full-back, has applied for Canadian citizenship and plans to make Ottawa his year-round home. The 22-year-old star, a key man in Ottawa's Big Four hopes, will be a Canadian by 1965.

BOMARC-B TRAINING FOR RCAF
OTTAWA (CP)—About 300 RCAF personnel soon will start training in the United States on operation and maintenance of the Bomarc-B anti-aircraft missile, a defence department spokesman said Tuesday.
This will bring to some 1,000 the number of armed forces personnel who have been trained on missiles of various kinds.
The Bomarc-B, now in production in the U.S., is scheduled to be installed and ready for operation at two bases in Canada by late 1962.
The base at North Bay, Ont., will require about 250 personnel and the one at La Macaza, Que., about 300. These figures include servicemen not directly connected with maintenance of the weapon.

LONGSHOREMEN Mechanized Ports Agreement
SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Harry Bridges longshore union and the Pacific Maritime Association announced agreement Tuesday night on full mechanizing of west coast ports.

Under the six-year agreement, employers will pay $5,000,000 annually into a workers' benefit fund.

In exchange, the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union gives up all work rule restrictions on cargo handling.

A joint ILWU-PMA statement called the agreement an epochal achievement in industrial relations.

The regular collective bargaining agreement on wages, due to expire in 1962, was extended to 1966 along with the mechanization agreement. Negotiations on wages can be reopened annually.

The mechanization pact assures the dock workers there will be no layoff, a guarantee of minimum weekly earnings, early retirement or a lump benefit at normal retirement at 65 plus additional death and disability benefits.

The weekly wage guarantee, on a 35-hour week basis, will become effective when labor-saving devices and changed methods reduce work opportunity. The wage guarantee will not apply when tonnage drops because of a decline in economic activity.

Nixon Taunted On Rejection Of 5th Debate

(Times News Services)

NEW YORK—Sen. John F. Kennedy today challenged Vice-President Richard Nixon to tell the American people why he refuses to engage in a fifth "great debate" on television.

DID NIXON APOLOGIZE TO NIKITA?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., says he has been reliably informed that Vice-President Richard Nixon expressed regret to Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev over the timing of a "captive nations" resolution approved by Congress.

Fulbright's statement appeared designed to counter the GOP presidential nominee's repeated criticism of Sen. John F. Kennedy for saying the United States should have expressed regrets to Khrushchev over the U-2 flight if this would have saved the Paris summit meeting.

Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, said his informant asserted that Nixon told Khrushchev during his visit to Russia last summer that neither he nor President Eisenhower would have chosen to have the resolution approved just before the trip.

ON RESERVOIR

No Takers For New Play Area

Greater Victoria water district's new covered reservoir on Mt. Tolmie will undergo tests at the end of this month but there still is no organization that will make use of its roof as a playing field.

Mayor Percy Scurrell, water board chairman, today said "it would be a shame if the roofed area is not used."

TWO ACRES

A covering of grassed earth providing a level area of almost two acres will be available when the reservoir goes into operation.

"It would provide an ideal playing field," said the mayor. "Victoria College has shown some interest in it. I certainly hope that some community organization will take hold of the opportunity and make use of it."

"I think the American people are entitled to know why," Kennedy said in a statement early today after arriving here for three days of campaigning and preparing for the fourth debate with Nixon on Friday night.

The Democratic nominee said that "I am willing to meet him anywhere in the nation at any hour of the day, in order that the issues of this campaign may be summed up just prior to the election, without an 18-day gap," but that Nixon has "again turned down" the bid for a fifth debate.

Kennedy said he would be willing to extend the fourth debate from one to two hours as Nixon proposed but that "this is in no way a substitute for a joint appearance in the final days of the campaign."

Leonard Reinsch, Kennedy's television adviser, said there still was a possibility that the fourth debate might be extended for a second hour if a satisfactory format could be worked out among the networks and the Kennedy and Nixon forces.

The antagonists lately have been following parallel campaign trails without actually meeting. Both addressed an American Legion convention in Miami Beach and spoke elsewhere in Florida Tuesday.

Nixon also was scheduled for appearances in and around New York today.

Kennedy said: "The fact is that the closer a debate is held to the election, the more difficult it is for any candidate to engage in any questionable tactics or inaccuracies for which he may be called to account in a face-to-face encounter."

Meanwhile, Kennedy's campaign for the closing weeks developed increasing toughness toward Nixon personally.

In Jacksonville, Fla., the Democratic nominee Tuesday night snapped, "I was not the vice-president of the United States who presided over the communication of Cuba."

He said Nixon talked a few years ago of communism having passed its peak in Latin America, but that the vice-president visited Venezuela and "I would have thought he would have known when the first rock hit what they thought."

Republicans Feuding On Negro in Cabinet

MIAMI BEACH (CP)—Richard Nixon Tuesday made a quick, 12-hour tour of Republican-leaning Florida and was immediately put into a tight spot by his own running mate.

With some surprise, the Republican presidential candidate learned that Henry Cabot Lodge again pledged a Negro would be appointed to the cabinet if Nixon is elected president. But later Lodge said it was his "guess."

Nixon and Lodge, the Republican vice-presidential candidate, had had a discussion on this issue at their Sunday huddle at Hartford, Conn. Unconfirmed reports later indicated the two were at odds on the question of a Negro appointment. Only the president can select the cabinet and it appears that Lodge either was talking out of turn or was doing so by pre-arrangement with Nixon.

A Nixon spokesman said he had no idea the issue would again emerge and re-emphasized that ability and not race or religion would be the gauge for cabinet appointments.

Fate of the much-maligned one here is worried about their own signs. Even the aldermen (McEwen and Austin Curtis) have spoken of the effect on their signs.

"We have a city to worry about. We can't leave the door open to monstrous signs that may be on the drawing boards. We can't peek away at this thing. We have to take the whole deal.

Fits Into Plan

"We should put ourselves in the hands of experts who have studied the matter fully. The sign bylaw fits into the overall city plan. We're eliminating overhead wires; we've improved our streets. If we straighten the sign mess we'll have a city second to none. But to do that we must be broadminded."

Said Sam Lane: "Restraint is necessary. In the tourist industry we are selling a commodity just as other businessmen. Our commodity is atmosphere. If the city slips in this regard everyone will lose. People will stop coming here."

Main diversion of opinion came from city planner Clark and Will Fraser, representing sign operators.

Mr. Clark contended: "Sign operators were one of the parties who sought revision of the bylaw."

Mr. Fraser charged the Chamber's sign questionnaire was "unfairly phrased."

Billboard operators would be "crippled" by the loss (by setting back) of posters in downtown parking lots.

That businessmen should have the right to decide what type of sign does the job; that operators favor facia signs generally but some businesses would suffer if restricted to them;

That the period of confirming to the new legislation should be extended from the proposed three years to five or seven years;

That flashing signs and roof signs (to be eliminated by the fourth draft) are not necessarily unsightly, don't affect the skyline and "are needed" by some clients, particularly national advertisers;

Mr. Fraser said he hoped "for some arrangement which deals fairly with sign companies at the same time being aesthetically desirable for the city."

Sign company operator Walter Bayliss substantially supported Mr. Fraser's submissions.

Mr. Bayliss charged the Chamber's sign questionnaire was "unfairly phrased."

To Restore the Contact

CANADA WAS AN ORIGINAL supporter, and a diligent member, of the 10-nation committee which was set up a year ago with the blessing of the United Nations Assembly to meet at Geneva and study the problem of international disarmament.

The committee—formed by the great powers and equally divided between East and West delegates—never got past the point of presenting the two major proposals. When the time came to get down to work and thresh out the merits of each plan, the Communist delegates found occasion to walk out of the meeting.

It was obvious that they were not motivated by what had occurred in the Geneva meeting itself; they were carrying out the demands of some larger Soviet plan of manoeuvre.

Most of the world is urging another meeting of the great powers to find an answer to the pressing problem of global survival in the nuclear age. East and West are divided by the shouted attacks of Mr. Khrushchev at the United Nations Assembly in New York during the past few weeks, by the echoes of the U-2 incident and Mr. Khrushchev's reaction to it, by the ruffled feelings deriving from the Summit fiasco in Paris last summer, by the Soviet Union's new belligerence towards the West in attempting to win the approval of the new African nations with a show of anti-colonialism.

Against this unpromising background Mr. Khrushchev and Mr. Macmillan delivered their latest disarmament proposals—much the same as earlier programs. And also in this atmosphere of distrust and resentment Canada today advanced a plan to assist in bringing the powers together in a common purpose.

The 10-nation committee should meet again and continue the work it dropped so abruptly. External Affairs Minister Green told the United Nations. But there should be two other committees to augment it.

One would be a technical committee—an idea that was also put forward by Mr. Macmillan when he advocated a body of scientific, military and administration experts who would go into the practical problems of disarmament as a basis for political discussion.

Mr. Green's second committee would represent the Assembly and serve as an advisory group to keep the negotiators moving toward the goal. It would bring the United Nations directly into the disarmament picture—heretofore dominated largely by direct discussion between the leading powers. In so doing it would meet the wish of most UN members that the global body take a more positive part in disarmament talks, and also, perhaps, invite co-operation from Mr. Khrushchev, who has urged that the UN Assembly as a whole constitute a conference on disarmament.

Mr. Green's proposals are not in the form of a resolution, but presented as a subject for debate in the political committee of the UN. They are modest, but they are sound. When contact between East and West has been so seriously broken, any groups which can bring both sides to the table—and the technical level of international contact has shown considerable success in the past—are to be encouraged.

The tides that swirl through the United Nations today are turbulent and unpredictable. Canada's proposals may suffer a quick fate, but they are in the right direction, and carry a little more hope than some exhibitions so recently seen in the New York forum.

Progress With an 'If'

IT IS RECOGNIZED AS UNWISE to accept any announcements, official or otherwise, coming out of the Congo these days. Almost invariably they are followed closely by further announcements denying or refuting them.

But—hedged about with all the necessary "ifs"—the news that Colonel Joseph Mobutu, currently the man in charge in the Congo, and President Moise Tshombe of Katanga Province are getting together to restore order in the country, carries considerable hope of progress.

Apart from the apparently deposed Premier Lumumba, these two men seem to speak with more authority than anyone else in the sadly confused country, and if they could achieve agreement on policy and action they could do much to establish a basis on which to build.

At present, reports from the Congo paint a sorry picture. With governmental functions and business grinding to a stop, with large areas of Leopoldville, the capital, standing vacant and Elizabethville in an even worse situation, with public health projects breaking down and the social fibre of the community disintegrating—this is a society on the verge of anarchy. It may well be that United Nations guidance and protection are all that stand between the Congo and such a fate.

The situation can hardly become worse: with a move towards unity among the people it stands a good chance of becoming better.

The problem presents a vital test for the United Nations. Mr. Khrushchev has done all he can, both in the Congo and at New York, to belittle, insult and destroy the efforts of able United Nations workers, led by Mr. Hammarskjöld, to bring order out of chaos. Eventually failure would suit the present Communist line.

A Mobutu-Tshombe agreement would constitute a big step forward. It is to be hoped that this is one piece of Congo news that will stand up as fact.

Surgery for Old Ships

ON ITS WAY ACROSS THE Atlantic is the steel midsection of a ship looking for a bow and stern. In Lorain, Ohio, are bow and stern waiting for the midsection.

This is a new shipyard surgery, not exactly unique, but certainly unusual in the arrangements by which the vessel will be assembled. It is also a technique which promises longer life to some World War II oil tankers whose corroded oil-carrying compartments have rendered the original vessels, possibly inoperable.

The midsection has been made in Hamburg. It will be towed across the ocean, up the St. Lawrence Seaway and eventually reach the Lorain yards. There the two ends will be fitted to it.

From the experiment is expected to come a program to revive other wartime-built craft. There are several in the United States whose bows and sterns have 10 or more years life in them, but the hulls lack the abdominal strength to match the head and tail. If they can be likewise joined to new midsections, a very substantial ship-building saving will be made.

Here, in part, is the story of ingenuity which is bringing war-rattled Hamburg up from the rubble personnel to make the ships it did before the war. But it has some skilled men and some improvised plants. The hull section crossing the Atlantic is a product of the two—a fore-runner, perhaps, of a new big oil tanker program for one of the famous centres of prewar ship construction.

Too Many Bodies

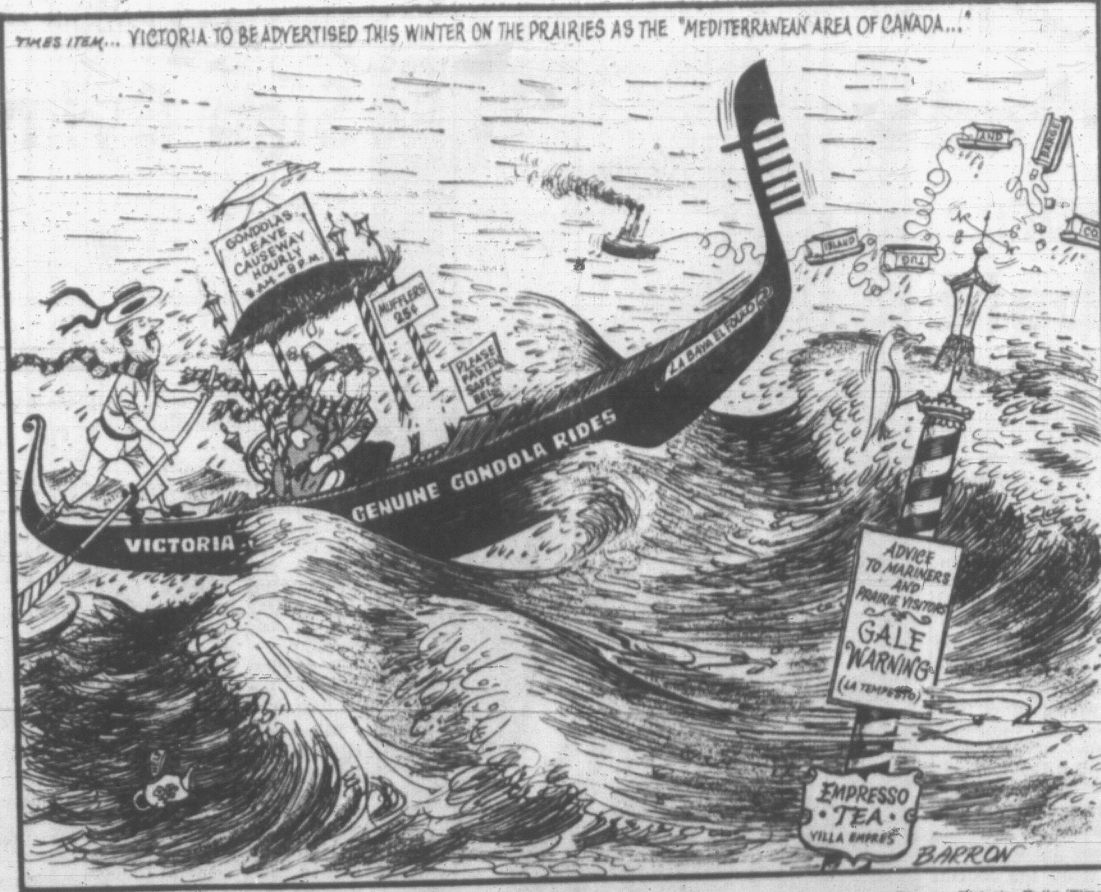

THE PROBLEM HASN'T YET hit Victoria College, but an interesting and confusing situation is developing in the United States where high school graduates seek admission to universities.

The students make several applications for admission to different colleges since they are not sure, in many cases, that they will be accepted by the one of their first choice. When they are accepted, most frequently they forget to notify the other schools to which they have applied.

This prompts a natural reaction from the colleges. They assume that among the applications reaching them is a percentage from students who will go elsewhere. Hence they can reasonably expect to advise more students than they can accommodate that the college's doors are open to them.

When classes begin, or official registration, the college can be faced with far more students than it anticipated, or far less. This year the trend is far more. The result is an embarrassment of riches in student body numbers, a poverty in accommodation.

EVERY MAN FOR HIMSELF

And May the Best Machine Win

By B. A. TOBIN

A NEWS item from New York reveals that the brave new world of perfect mechanization may not be at hand after all; and, indeed, may never arrive. It seems—and I for one am human enough to be delighted to hear it—that the robots can fumble and goof just as we do. I hear a dozen robots reply that this is only to be expected when the human inventors of the machine are themselves something less than perfect. If so—hurray for imperfection. Perhaps human imperfections will be our key to survival. For since everything we make will be imperfect, our mechanical competition will be no better than we are.

Tobin

At any rate, it is a heartening thing to read that a multi-million-dollar machine could make a two-bit mistake in translation.

It seems that they put a robot to translating a Russian engineering paper. A number of times the translation referred to a "water goat," and it took a lot of investigation to find that what the original Russian had talked about was a hydraulic ram—an automatic pressure pump for raising water.

Now that is just about the sort of thing human beings do—taking the al-most-right and using it whether it makes sense or not. As long as we can hold the machines down to this level of conduct we have nothing to fear from them. At least we'll be able to meet them on even terms.

The day will come, of course, when we devise machines that will automatically make machines. It may be here already. Then we can put automated heredity to the test. Faulty humans make faulty machines. Will these in turn hand on their faultiness, so that a long succession of inherited faults will mark the new age of electronics?

Let us hope so, for if the machines are able to correct their inherited tendency to make mistakes, and ultimately produce a line of perfect robots, our days will be numbered. Like the stone-age man whose remains were found in the Iranian hills recently we will be displaced by a more intelligent and better-adapted race.

He was pushed into extinction by a new race of larger-brained men sweeping down from Europe. We will pass into extinction or perhaps slavery, superseded by a race of transistor-brained, fool-proof robots whose fumbling ancestors we had ourselves invented.

We could expect no mercy, no remorse, no softness, no release. We'd be sunk.

With this possible fate in mind, we can take a much more tolerant view of the errors of our machines. Each failure, each malfunction, each gaffe, flop, honor or snafu should be welcomed as further evidence that the machine is not perfect, that it is still on our level, and that we still have a fighting chance to remain its masters.

There is an alternative, of course, but it rarely occurs to us. Instead of working to produce perfect machines, we could work to produce perfect humans. That seems revolutionary, but it might be done.

One scientist, a Dr. Tatum who won a Nobel Prize, says it should be quite possible to rid the human race of undesirable traits and produce perfect specimens. That sounds like a good start.

But right away the Doctor got into trouble. For in his very next sentence he brought up the question of who is going to decide what is "undesirable," what is "perfect."

"Here you run into an area of judgment," he says.

And judgment is something human beings just aren't very strong in.

Eventually, no doubt, we may perfect a machine that can decide how good our judgment is, and so help us to become perfect. But when you get machines making moral decisions the world could be in for trouble. Things could get into almost as bad a state as they are with humans in charge.

FROM LEOPOLDVILLE

They See a Panorama of Disaster

By RITCHIE CALDER

FROM the heights of the Brazzaville side, it seemed as though a heavy boom had been thrown across the Congo and that the river transports, high prowed like galleons, were locked in Stanley Pool. From the beach the "boom" resolved itself into a dense mass of vegetation, as though a hurricane had hit the forest and had swept the debris into the river.

From the ferry, crossing to Leopoldville, it became obvious that this was not storm havoc but solid masses of water hyacinth, with pale-blue blooms bobbing in the murky river. Presently a riverboat broke the "boom" and headed upstream into the interior with food supplies organized by the United Nations.

The Congo situation itself is rather like that. The first impression one gets is that politics are blocking every helpful move. The second is that the "winds of change," at hurricane strength, have left a lot of wreckage. The third that slowly, like that accumulating water hyacinth in the river, the economy is being choked. And lastly that, like the riverboat, the UN is struggling through.

The political blockage, with contending "Governments," is unhappily real. The "hurricane" which swept out the Belgians and wrecked the administrative machinery is liable to blow up again, as the UN military forces are sensitively aware.

But do not underestimate the symbolism of the water hyacinth. As the FAO experts, struggling with this alien weed (from Latin America, where, indigenously, it is not a menace) in the tropical rivers of Africa and Asia, will tell you, this is a disaster.

While the political arguments go on, here and in the General Assembly of the UN, the economy and public services of the Congo are gradually clogging up.

Critical Point

From his vantage point as Chief of Civilian Operations of ONUC (Organization des Nations Unies au Congo) Dr. Sture Linner sees it as a "panorama of disaster."

"It is not a question of years or even months," he says. "It is a question of weeks, if the people of the Congo are not going to suffer the unspeakable hardships which we are here to avert and if tremendous sums are not to be wasted."

Consider the predicament of the UN people here. They have moved into a country four times the size of France, with a scattered population of under fourteen million. It has great natural resources, rich mineral deposits, valuable forests, and ample cultivable land. It is wealthy.

By any analysis the country is self-sufficient in food supplies. The Belgians had provided an extensive system of rail, water, and air transport. A system of telecommunications maintained the political and economic control over the vast territory.

Taxation, customs, foreign trade, the judiciary, the health services—everything—were entirely in the hands of the Belgians, to the extreme that no Congolese was ever in a position of knowing anything of the workings beyond his limited job.

Unrelated

For example, a Congolese working in the meteorology department would plot information on a chart without ever knowing how it was used for forecasting; a laboratory assistant would spend his life doing germ counts quite proficiently, without knowing why, or how, it related to the work of his colleague who put the chlorine in the public water supply, and vice versa.

The Belgians left. In the panic situation many essential works stopped because there were no wages.

The administrators, like an army headquarters destroying its cipher books and operational maps in retreat, contrived that the "blue prints" of their system were not available.

The UN teams have had to reconstruct those "blue prints" deductively and there are painful experiences which suggest that they left administrative "guerrillas" behind them as well.

Even if there had been no civil disturbance when the Congo acquired its independence the problems would have been serious.

The paradoxical situation would have existed that in spite of its great natural wealth there would have been acute economic distress which would not have been assuaged without massive external assistance.

United Nations reports have underscored the high material standards of the Europeans (spectacularly illustrated by the luxury of the Leopoldville apartment skyscrapers, hotels, and houses) as contrasted with the levels at which the Africans were deliberately maintained.

A European would get ten times the salary of a Congolese doing the same job. But, apart from that, there was a complete absence of trained civil servants, executives, and professional people of Congolese nationality.

Numerically Limited

In the whole of the Congo there were only seventeen Congolese graduates. The first Congolese doctors (two) will graduate next year. Secondary education, designed to produce proficient technicians and functionaries, was good but numerically limited.

In terms of the Congo's immediate and long-term needs, time is running out. However clearly the United Nations advisers may see what has to be done, and in many cases have the financial means to do it, they cannot usurp ministerial prerogative or take actions, however necessary, which would imply that the young Republic is a UN colony.

As Our Readers See It

Explanation

In Saturday's Times in an editorial entitled "Loose Talk" you suggested that I owed the newspapers of Canada an apology because I had said that children today have to fight off "a parade of filth... in newspapers, magazines, newsstand books, advertising and TV." If this quotation had been accurate I would acknowledge the justice of your complaint.

The speech in which I referred to the problems we face in educating our children in the kind of society that exists on this continent was made to the annual convention of the British Columbia School Trustees' Association—an important and responsible body. The subject could hardly have been more important. In consequence I used a written text and can therefore tell you exactly what I said. In referring specifically to the contents of the "books and magazines on our newsstands" I said "this filth is being placed before our children not at their demand but because we—our generation—see a chance to make money." In your editorial you wrote that "If Dr. Keenleyside had confined his remarks to the pornography of the so-called 'girlie' magazines found on newsstands; to certain paper-back novels disseminated from the same stalls; and to the crimes and violence of TV, few people would question his thesis." This, Sir, is precisely what I did.

My only reference to newspapers was a paragraph reading as follows:

Our newspapers emphasize the crimes, the perversions, the whole range of the defects of our society—because according to their assertions that is what we demand. We like it or they wouldn't publish it. Apparently it is particularly attractive to the women in our society because it is the home editions of the newspapers that emphasize it most. And this is the picture of society that we set before our children. The social garbage of the popular gossip columnists in Hollywood and New York is our printed idea of the good life. And yet we expect our children to grow up with high ideals!

Although this is perhaps an exaggeration if applied to the Times—which I consider an admirable newspaper—it is certainly not an exaggeration of what is found in most of the papers, particularly the evening papers, on this continent.

May I suggest that you consider the propriety of your editorial in the light of these facts:

1. You based your comment on a press report of a serious speech on a serious subject before a serious audience.

2. A text of what was said was available to any reporter who had asked for it (which no one did).

3. You could have confirmed the accuracy or otherwise of the press report by a one minute telephone call.

4. Without bothering to take such an elementary professional precaution you wrote your editorial condemning my speech as loose talk and suggesting that I apologize.

Would I be unreasonable if I suggest that you might consider apologizing for this surprising and most uncharacteristic lapse into careless journalism?

H. L. KEENEYSIDE.

By Any Other Name

Editor's note: The Times accepts Dr. Keenleyside's explanation of his remarks. In the specific text there is not a direct reference to "filth" in newspapers. However his remarks about newspapers, as quoted in his letter, immediately follow his reference to "filth" in magazines; and the two are, by inference, lumped together as the "picture of society" conveyed to children. His listeners, including the reporter present, must have gathered this impression, even if he did not wish to convey it.

Dingy

Timely advice of the police commissioner to the storekeepers of Victoria about guarding their premises against burglary is a good idea. But the young also need additional help, especially from others in authority.

Having occasion to visit Victoria recently to go to the theatre, and having time to spare, we walked around that area and were amazed at the pit of gloom we had penetrated. Partly blinded by neon signs only, and very little street lighting for safety, we compared it to the ancient caverns of darkness we had seen in the picture, and wondered if prevention would not be better than cure, for crime! by applying the modernism of "let there be more light" also on the side streets of Victoria.

Mean Theft

I should like to commend the gentleman in the car who stopped on the Sooke and Humpback Road, Friday, Oct. 14, and stole my son's papers. This caused an eleven-year-old Times-delivery boy a great deal of trouble. The person who did this is really a cut below the ordinary thief. He stole sixty cents worth of papers. I feel that this man must be sick in his mind, as no sane person would be capable of performing such a trick.

Alcoholism Problem Here 'Must Be Put on the Map'

By HAL JONES

Problem facing the 'Alcoholism Foundation of B.C. is how to get the general public to accept the fact that alcoholism is a community problem and should be dealt with by the community as a whole.

The Victoria branch is now hoping to get things moving in this field by organizing a number of public institutes. First of these was held last weekend and consensus was that far more should be done in Victoria to put the problem "on the map."

FIRST TIME

"Up till now there have been several attempts made to blast alcoholism by one or two individual groups but this is the first time an attempt has been made to bring the subject under a community study," said A. G. Chatten, of the Victoria branch, Canadian Mental Health Association.

The association sponsored the institute at Royal Jubilee Hospital although, Mr. Chatten pointed out, alcoholism is only one of the many problems it is concerned with.

INFORM THEM

Dr. Brock Chisholm, patron of the institute, said the first necessity for a community wishing to fight the problem is to see that its citizens are well informed about it.

It was revealed at the meeting the provincial government's contribution to the foundation in 1959 for financing research was $110,000—just one quarter of one per cent of the $30 million profit it took on liquor sales.

But Dr. Chisholm suggested it would be difficult to get more help from the government until public opinion is behind the drive.

"I think it would be unreasonable to ask a politician to lead an unpopular cause," he said. "There has to be public opinion before you can find a champion for it."

Faculty of Friday's Institute comprised Osher Minovitz, clinic physician and former resident physician of Oakalla jail; E. D. McRae, executive director of the foundation; Sidney Kerslake, senior counselor, and Harold Higgins, director of education.

It was attended by social workers, businessmen, doctors, ministers, representatives of the armed forces, teachers, nurses and students.

Let's Organize

WASHINGTON (UPI)—It is becoming increasingly difficult in this age of the organization man for two people to have lunch together without forming a national association, a national committee, a national conference, a national council, a national bureau, a national federation, a national institute, a national league or a national society of some sort.

The procedure apparently is to draw up a set of by-laws during the entire, elect officers over coffee and dessert, and then go out and hire a Washington representative.

At any rate, there is almost no branch of business, professional or social life in America that does not now have at least an office in the capital. A few occupy entire buildings.

I got to wondering about the purpose of some of these groups the other day as I was trying to find the telephone number of the national clean-up paint-up fix-up bureau.

There are, I discovered, at least 200 national something-or-others listed in the directory, not including the government agencies whose names begin with "national." I didn't try to count them all for fear of eye-strain.

A person adept at conclusion-jumping might leap to the assumption that the reason for opening an office here is to look out after certain legislative interests. But what sort of legislation would interest the national association of baby sitter registry?

Could it be trying to lobby against socialized baby sitting?

Some of the groups would appear to overlap. What business, for instance, do the national council of teachers of mathematics and the national science teachers' association have that the national education association couldn't attend to?

There would, in fact, seem to be a lot of room for consolidation. One suitable merger might bring the national committee for a sane nuclear policy together with the national committee against mental illness.

Some groups, of course, have no common ground. The national woman's Christian temperance union naturally wouldn't join hands with the national association of wine bottlers. But I see no reason why the WCTU couldn't link up with the national committee for prevention of alcoholism.

The national institute of uriculture maintains two offices here. Does this mean that uriculture is on the rise? For that matter, what is uriculture?

And what are the national preservers' association, the national reclamation association, the national rehabilitation association and the national renderers' association seeking to preserve, reclaim, rehabilitate and render?

I got so involved in puzzling about these matters that I never did make connection with the national clean-up paint-up fix-up bureau. I dialed the wrong number.

AT UNITED NATIONS

World Food Bank Backed by U.S.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The UN was asked Tuesday to support a far-ranging program to feed the world's hungry millions.

The plan is designed to implement Prime Minister Diefenbaker's "food bank" plan advanced before the 15th General Assembly Sept. 26 and President Eisenhower's "food for peace" program outlined a few days earlier.

But the U.S. carried the ball Tuesday when Frederick B. Payne, an American delegate, introduced before the 99-nation economic committee a program that would channel aid to under-developed countries through the UN Food and Agricultural Organization.

The resolution was co-sponsored by Canada, Haiti, Liberia, Pakistan, the U.S. and Venezuela.

It calls attention to the contribution which the "appropriate" utilization of food surpluses could have in economic development and expresses the belief that international assistance in the establishment of national food reserves in food-deficient countries in "one effective means to achieve this goal."

The resolution calls on the FAO to set up the means to funnel through the UN framework "the largest practicable quantities of food which may be made available on special conditions to satisfy hungry people."

It also calls on the FAO to consult with Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld and UN member governments before going ahead with the plan.

Generally Normal

Near-normal temperatures will cover most of Canada until mid-November, according to the 30-day outlook of the United States weather bureau. Maps show predicted temperatures and precipitation across the country for the month.

Tables give normal readings for various centres.

These maps are based on predictions of the weather office which says its monthly outlook is not a specific forecast and that a change in weather pattern may produce major errors.

There can be little left for interest during winter.

NO DENIAL — In this favored area, we need suffer no denial for our gardening instincts during winter. It is sometimes difficult for those who work long hours in their gardens through spring, summer and fall to develop interest in another hobby which will keep them engrossed during spare time through the colder months—something equally active.

Apart from one's own outdoors, and dyed-in-the-wool gardeners like to spend such days visiting their plants and come a-calling. Whether gardeners or not, they are bound to be properly impressed by posed of summer flowering plants and annuals, a few flowering shrubs, and some vegetables with the winter landscape which have all been harvested, officially in mind.

Another aspect of winter gardening is that it lacks the hurry of the other seasons. There are routine jobs to be done while weather is pleasant, but four months (more or less) in which to do them.

There is time too, for studying the individual blossoms of winter, the tracery of bare branches, the shining leaves and swelling flower buds of the evergreens which bloom in early spring. And time to observe at close quarters the winter birds which will become friends if sufficient covering shrubs and a little food and water are supplied.

As a bonus, if wisely planted, there can be fragrance in the winter garden, subtle and dainty, yet as pleasing to the gardener as any found in greater abundance in summer.

'SLEEPY' AFFAIR

CD Parley Termed 'Boring'

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—Mayor L. A. Read said Monday night a recent Western conference on civil defence in Edmonton was so boring that mayors and reeves attending had a hard time staying awake.

The mayor told city council that because of untrained lecturers the 80 municipal leaders gained little from the conference.

British Columbia delegates were so disturbed they held a caucus and Reeve Allan Emmott of Burnaby was appointed to express the group's dissatisfaction.

Mayor Read said the lectures lasted 3½ days and the meeting "became for most of us very boring."

"One cause was that these lecturers had not been trained. They were army or air force or navy personnel who had been retired and put into these jobs."

Without criticizing the speakers' enthusiasm and depth of knowledge, he felt they could have been a little more "mag-netic."

1,200 Electricians In Montreal Lockout

MONTREAL (CP)—The Corporation of Master Electricians Monday locked out 1,200 employees from many major construction projects in Montreal.

A spokesman for the corporation, representing 14 electrical contractors in the city, said the move resulted from a demand by the employees for a 25-cent-an-hour wage increase.

WAX WORKS MUSEUM PROPOSED HERE

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

Queen Victoria is coming to Victoria soon.

She may be followed by Henry VIII, Elizabeth I,
Winston Churchill, Nikita Khrushchev, Harold Macmillan, Charles de Gaulle and Gamal Abdel Nasser.

No, our brand of tea doesn't need testing. It is true.

These and other famous Hal Malone royal and political personages will stand, sit or recline in Victoria next year. You won't be able to tell them from the real thing—unless you hold your cigarette lighter too close.

The figures will be wax. And as lifelike, swears John Steele, as if they stepped out of a photograph.

Just when they will arrive depends on the speed with which Mr. Steele can secure the necessary financial participation.

Mr. Steele hopes it won't take too long. He has given himself until mid-December to gather the $40,000 necessary to make Steele's Wax Works
Museum a reality in Victoria.

If he doesn't get it by then,
Mr. Steele intends to take his idea and his franchise elsewhere.

Wax works are something new in North America. There's a small religious works in Montreal. St. Augustine's in Florida has the first full-scale operation in America. Its figures are made by Josephine Toussaud of London.

It was through Toussaud's — or rather through Keith Gens, the firm's managing director — that Steele became interested in the world of wax.

U.S. Tariffs, Quotas Hit By Bonner

VANCOUVER (CP)—United States tariffs and quotas on Canadian mining exports came under sharp criticism here Tuesday from Trade and Commerce Minister Bonner.

Mr. Bonner termed the U.S. tariffs and quotas "nuisance" barriers while addressing the annual western meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining.

He said the U.S. tariff and quotas on Canadian mining exports were "a major barrier to the Canadian mining industry."

Government and industry of both countries should work to reduce the barriers to north-south trade in the future, said
Mr. Bonner.

Despite what some politicians felt, Canada was inextricably bound up with the U.S. regarding future growth and

1961 B.C. TRADE FAIR MAY INVITE RED CHINA

VANCOUVER (CP) — The president of the British Columbia 1961 International Trade Fair said Tuesday Communist China will probably be asked to exhibit.

William J. Borrie said at a press conference he will urge the executive Wednesday to invite the Communist country. The fair opens May 3.

"I don't see why we should neglect such a large market," Mr. Borrie said. "We may look back in a couple of months and regret it."

He said Russia has already declined an invitation.

VOTE IN DECEMBER

$5 Monthly Cost For New Sewers

After a two-hour meeting with officials of the engineering department, Saanich public works committee Tuesday unfolded its payment plan for a proposed $1,200,000 Cadboro Bay-Gordon Head-Sheilbourne sewer project.

Ratepayers in the district with a population of 5,200 will vote on the sewer bylaw in December.

Under the committee's plan for levying sewer costs, property owners who own less than 65 feet of accessible frontage will pay about $50 a year towards the sewer service system.

Those with over 65 feet of accessible frontage will pay about $65.

Municipal engineer Neville Life said on a monthly basis, the average property owner would be paying between $5 and $6 for the sewer system.

Property owners with irregular frontages will be given special consideration, he said.

"It is unlikely that ratepayers will ever have another opportunity to install a sewer system as such costs," he said. "Cost of labor and materials are expected to go up in the next few years."

TWO-YEAR JOB

He said the $1,200,000 will pay for all sewer trunks, laterals, outfalls and pumps.

If the sewer bylaw was approved by ratepayers, he said, work on the project would begin in the late spring of 1961. The project would take about two years to complete.

Malaya Won't Veto S. Africa

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman of Malaya said Tuesday night that if other Commonwealth nations should decide that South Africa could remain in the fold he will not veto their decision.

He told a press conference he wanted nothing to do with South Africa, which this month voted in favor of becoming a republic. But if the other members decide South Africa can remain, he said, "it just can't be helped."

CANADIAN RAILROADS AHEAD OF U.S.

OTTAWA — Canadian railways are ahead of United States roads in meeting competition from other forms of transport, a U.S. transportation economist told the Macpherson royal commission Tuesday.

The economist—Dr. Ernest W. Williams of Columbia University—told the commission Canada's two major rail systems have gone much farther in meeting truck, ship and pipeline competition, partly because they are less restricted in setting rates than U.S. roads and partly because they are more aware of the problems facing them.

Dr. Williams made the statement in answer to a question from CPR counsel Ian Sinclair during cross-examination of a brief which the U.S. expert presented to the commission on behalf of the provinces of Manitoba and Alberta.

George Besseney, Hungarian dramatist who died in 1811, was a member of the famed Hungarian Horse Guards.

GOV'T STAYS ALOOF

Showdown Close In Rail Dispute

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's biggest labor scrap is moving relentlessly toward a crucial showdown—without any sign so far of government intervention to bring the disputants together.

Labor circles indicate that early December—perhaps Dec. 5—may be the earliest deadline for a nation-wide walkout of 111,000 "non-op" railway workers to back their demands for a 14-cent hourly pay boost.

Strike ballots are to be returned to union general chairmen across Canada by Nov. 9. After tabulating the result—almost certain to favor strike action—the unions would be ready to spring the threat of a strike on the railways by mid-November, possibly about the time observers expect Parliament to be getting back to work.

This would leave a chance for the federal cabinet to try to prevent a railway strike that would tie up the transcontinental services of the CPR and the CNR.

In the 1958 dispute, which went as far as a strike threat before being settled, the unions gave the railways 20 days' notice of the strike deadline. This was enough time for the federal cabinet to confirm a freight rate increase to cover the cost of the wage settlement.

COMMISSION TO PROBE RAIL' FEATHERBEDDING'

WASHINGTON (AP)—American railway management and operating brotherhoods agreed Tuesday to submit their dispute over work rules to a presidential commission.

This removes a continuing threat of a nationwide strike of what railway management describes as "featherbedding"—forced use of unnecessary workers or payment of wages without a commensurate return in services.

The operating brotherhoods are the unions of employees who operate trains.

Changed!

Volkswagen's engineers make three major improvements to the world's most successful small car.

You can't tell the new VW just by looking. You have to drive it. All the changes have been made within the car, for example:

More powerful engine: Engine power's up 10%. Now the Volkswagen leaps away from lights. You scoot up hills, scuttle round bends and fly down highways faster than before. And overtaking is safer because there's more reserve power in every gear. The engine itself, although increased to 40 horse power, still retains its famous economy. A pleasant thought.

Synchronized first gear: Now you can shift down to first gear without stopping the car. At low speeds you change straight down with a flick of the wrist.

Stop-and-start driving: Four synchronized speeds is a luxury even in the more expensive cars. But to have it in a car of Volkswagen's size and price is quite amazing. The ratios of all four gears have been changed too so you can use every ounce of extra power developed by the new engine. The new VW is as nimble as a needle in traffic and more fun than a fair.

Increased luggage space: Volkswagen's luggage space is now an ample 10 cubic feet; 5 behind the back seat and 5 up front (the engine is in the rear of course). Now the VW goes to market and runs all the way home with your groceries under the hood. Or takes a long vacation with all kinds of luggage neatly stowed away.

The VW is constantly being improved: Since 1948, no less than nine hundred improvements have been made to the Volkswagen. Yet it still remains basically the same car with the same styling. That's why a VW may grow old but never obsolete—and why it retains its value.

The VW is an honest product. It is Volkswagen's philosophy not to change for the sake of change but to search continually for new ways to improve a great idea. Here are some more improvements in the new VW.

Automatic choke: The old manual choke is gone for good. Now the idling speed of the engine is automatically regulated to suit driving conditions. The VW won't stall when you stop... even on very damp days.

Better steering: The steering is lighter and safer. A hydraulic damper soaks up road shocks before they reach the steering wheel. You keep a steady hand when the Volkswagen hits a bump.

No more carburetor icing: Once upon a time, on cold, damp days, the VW would sometimes ice up. But no more. Now a stream of warm air from the engine is played directly into the carburetor. It can't catch cold.

Interesting new colours: The new Volkswagen is a much prettier car. There are six brand new colours to choose from, not counting black. Inside, the newly-styled interiors harmonize superbly. There's coloured floor covering and there is even a coloured steering wheel.

Windshield washer is standard: In the new Volkswagen, the windshield washer is standard equipment. So is a larger door pocket, front-passenger hand grip, twin padded sun visors and a dozen other features.

Some of these improvements in the De Luxe Volkswagen are also in the Custom model. Whichever you buy, we think you get the best car value in the world.

The new Volkswagen is a lot more fun to drive. Why not find out for yourself today at your nearest VW dealer.

$133 GIVEN TO FUND IN MEMORY OF BONNIE

The Bonnie Barrett Colwood Bursary Fund reached $133 today and money is still coming in, a spokesman for Sands Funeral Home said.

The fund will provide a bursary of $25 for deserving Colwood High School graduates who intend to take teacher training. It is in memory of 16-year-old Bonnie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Gordon Barrett, 1993 Colwood Crescent, who died last Saturday.

Funeral services were held at Sands Chapel of the Heather Tuesday.

Bonnie always wanted to be a school teacher when she grew up. So Mrs. Marie Gaunt of 3369 Painter Road, a friend of the family, started the Bonnie Barrett Fund to help other children to become teachers.

NEW YORK GAY 90s BIG HIT

NEW YORK (AP)—"Tenderloin" is a new Broadway musical all about the wicked, wicked ways of little old New York when grandpa was a tot.

The show arrived Monday night on the stage of the 46th Street Theatre. It has zip, sparkle and, most of all, an infectious score filled with new melodies of gay nineties vintage to set listeners humming and chuckling.

The performance, led by star Maurice Evans and newcomer Ron Husmann, has the polish to be expected from director George Abbott, engaged here on his 98th Broadway production.

Evans lets the orchestra provide the melody when he lines out lyrics. He moves with stylish aplomb through his role of a sin-busting clergyman determined to close up the fancy houses of vice.

Among the songs, produced by the team of Jerry Hock and Sheldon Harnick, special cheers belong to Little Old New York, Artificial Flowers, The Picture of Happiness and My Miss Mary.

"Tenderloin" is a follow-up production by the same creative team with the exception of "Tenderloin" designer Cecil Beaton which scored triumphantly last season with the Pulitzer Prize musical "Fiorello!"

The sequel isn't quite that splendid.

Horatio Alger, American author of books for boys who died in 1899, gave away most of his large income, mainly to orphan boys.

Driving too slowly on Douglas Street—at half the 50 miles an hour speed limit—is "committing a nuisance" when there are some 10 cars behind and unable to pass.

So learned Fred Chow, 2656 Cedar Hill, when Magistrate William Ostler fined him $10 and $5 costs on finding the accused guilty in Saanich police court Tuesday.

Chow entered no defence to the charge after pleading not guilty.

He had told Cons. Robert Peterson, who followed the procession for about a mile before stopping Chow, that he drove slowly because a mechanic had just fixed his car engine and told him not to drive fast for a while.

PROHIBITION VOTE

'Heaven Is Above, Hell Down Below'

YAMACHICHE, Que. (CP)—A move to end 45 years of prohibition has sparked one of the most spirited campaigns ever witnessed in this normally sleepy town of 1,100 people.

Residents, predominantly Roman Catholic and French-speaking, will vote Thursday on whether to retain or end prohibition, imposed in 1915 during the First World War. About 400 people will be eligible to vote.

The anti-prohibition fight is being waged by Mayor Emile Pellerin and members of his council. Mayor Pellerin said he wants to wipe out 10 blind pigs or illegal drinking establishments in the town, 65 miles northeast of Montreal.

The Sacred Heart League, a lay organization, and Les Cercles Lacordaire, a temperance group, backed by Abbe Lionel Dubois, curate in Yamachiche, launched a vigorous campaign in favor of retaining prohibition.

Voters have received through the mail a sample of the ballot to be used in the referendum. The upper section showed where the voter should place his "x" in favor of prohibition. In the space was the notation: "Don't forget Heaven is above." Immediately below was the space for those opposing prohibition. It bore the warning: "Don't forget hell is down below."

Mayor Pellerin and his councillors have announced they will resign in a body if the people oppose them in the referendum.

HOCKEY'S A ROUGH BUSINESS

Bearing marks of battle, Colin Kilburn (centre) and Tom Hodges (right) were ready for business as usual when Spokane Comets tackled Victoria Cougars in Western Hockey League game at Memorial Arena Tuesday night. Comet veterans also had words of advice for rookie Larry McNabb of Nanaimo (left), who is trying to nail down defence

HIS SIN: BEING 70

Writers Don't Hide Feelings About Stengel

(From Times News Services)
NEW YORK—It's no secret how New York baseball writers feel about Casey Stengel. And there is no doubt about who was handed the rap in his dismissal as manager of New York Yankees.

Arthur Daley of The New York Times says: "Nervously puffing on a cigarette, Dan Topping, co-owner of the Yankees with Del Webb, read a prepared statement (at Tuesday's press conference). It was full of empty words, as barren of meaning as one of Casey's rhetorical flights into Stengese. After reading it, Topping faded into the background as if ashamed of himself. He should be."

"It's a shabby way to treat the man who has not only brought them glory but also has given their dynasty a firmer footing than it ever had. So long, Case. You gave us 12 unforgettable years."

Red Smith of The Herald Tribune writes: "There was a half-hearted effort to imply that Casey sought more leisure to spend with his wife, but Stengel brushed that aside and laid the responsibility where it belongs, with Topping and Webb."

"Wisely or unwisely, with or without good reason, fairly or not, they fired the man who has done more for them and their club than any other human, and probably has done as much for the game as anybody this side of Babe Ruth."

Sports editor Dan Parker of The Mirror:

"Losing the late World Series was just a slight mishap compared with what happened to the Yankees Tuesday. Officially, Casey's sin was in reaching the age of 70 (shades of Connie Mack!). In view of this utterly unconvincing reason for firing a genius, it was a wonderful break for the Yankee owners that the club lost the series with Pittsburgh's Pirates."

Ken Smith of The Mirror:

"There is no joy in Mudville or New York—the mighty Casey Stengel struck out, victim of a fast curve by the front office."

Houk Best Bet to Succeed Casey

Meanwhile, informed baseball men were ready to lay odds today that Ralph Houk, New York coach for the last three years, will succeed Casey as manager of the Yankees in 1961.

Houk, 41-year-old former Yankee catcher, who returned to the organization after serving a term as manager of Denver in the American Association, is expected to be introduced in his new capacity during a press conference Thursday.

It will come as no surprise if Topping also announces George M. Weiss' resignation as general manager. Topping has taken a more active part in the club's operations in recent months.

Unlike Stengel, who will completely sever his connections with the club, the 65-year-old Weiss is expected to be retained in an advisory capacity. Weiss' contract still has several years to run.

Roy Hamer, 58, at present assistant general manager, may be named to succeed Weiss. Also moving into the front office would be Jack White, the present general manager of the Richmond farm in the International League, and Arthur (Red) Patterson, currently publicity director of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

Stengel bowed out and Weiss will follow because Topping and Webb agreed "there should be an age limit." In the future the club will not employ a manager after he's 65.

Edna Wants Him to Get Some Money

Stengel, chagrined and bitter over his dismissal, intimated he would be amenable to an offer to manage elsewhere.

"My wife, Edna," he said, "would like me to get some money some place."

Asked whether he thought a man of 70 was too old to manage, he said:

"Depends on what a man can do. Whether he can instill spirit into a ball club. Whether he can get the most out of his players. Results count."

Then his voice softened as he reminisced about those 12 years just behind him.

"It was amazing to win in 1949," he said. "The club was on the way down. That Joe DiMaggio was one of the greatest players I ever saw. Don't think I don't remember 'em all . . . Reynolds and Raschi and Lopat . . . that Mantle, who might be the best of 'em all . . . Ford's pitching . . . and Skowron playing with a bad back."

"Which was the best team? It's hard to say," he pondered. "But in 1953 when he won five straight world championships, we must have been pretty good. This team right now can get back on the ball. It's just got to get keyed up."

You remembered how they called him a clown when he was signed as the Yankee manager 12 years ago. But the chipper, bantering man who then was 58 now was a worn, discarded legend at 70.

His ties with the Yankees vanish on Oct. 31. That's Halloween. The gargoyle grin he wore as he walked out was, somehow, very fitting.

LEAGUE HITS NEW LOW BUT STILL TOPS MINORS

MONTREAL (UPI)—International Baseball League attendance touched a postwar low of 1,369,011 in 1960, but the circuit led all minors in attendance for the fifth straight year, Frank Shaughnessy, league president, announced Tuesday.

The 1960 total was a drop of 409,068 from the 1959 figure of 1,778,079. Shaughnessy blamed the decrease on "scurious talk" by Continental League advocates, a poor race (Toronto won by 17 games), an unusually rainy spring and further encroachments by television interests "who seem bent on destroying the minors."

The league does not issue individual club figures, but Buffalo announced earlier it led baseball's minor league clubs with a turnout of 278,352. Other cities in the league are Montreal, Rochester, Columbus, Richmond, Jersey City and Miami.

Bucs, Braves Load All-Stars

NEW YORK (UPI)—The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates and the Milwaukee Braves placed four players each on the 1960 National League all-star team named today by the United Press International.

Second baseman Bill Mazeroski, shortstop Dick Groat, outfielder Roberto Clemente and pitcher Vern Law were the Pirates honored, while catcher Del Crandall, third baseman Ed Mathews, outfielder Hank Aaron and pitcher Warren Spahn were the Braves selected on the squad of eight regulars and two pitchers.

First baseman Norm Larker of Los Angeles Dodgers and centerfielder Willie Mays of San Francisco Giants were the other players picked by Writers and Radio Broadcasters from each city in the league.

The closest race was at shortstop where Groat, who won the N.L. batting crown with a .325 mark, beat out Chicago Cub shortstop Ernie Banks, .311.

Aaron and Mays were unanimous choices for outfielder positions and Mazeroski, the Pirate's World Series hero, received all but one vote in the balloting for second baseman.

The only pitchers besides Law and Spahn to receive votes were Ernie Broglio, who won 21 games, and Lindy McDaniel, star relief hurler, both of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Dick Gamble got both the Buffalo goals.

Sterne Not in Rear At Sports Car Meet

Vancouver Island sports car driver George Sterne won three class awards in the Northwest Sports Car News race held at Pacific Meadows-Kent, Washington, over the weekend.

The Sidney garage proprietor was driving a Morgan and was the only Island representative at the meet.

Palermo Subpoenaed

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Frank (Blinky) Palermo, identified by investigators as the field lieutenant of alleged underworld boxing czar Frankie Carbo, has been subpoenaed to appear in December before a United States Senate anti-trust subcommittee investigating the sport.

The subpoena Tuesday directed Palermo, 55, to appear in Washington the week of Dec. 5.

John Bonomi, assistant subcommittee counsel, said Palermo will be questioned about:

1. Evidence claimed by Bonomi that Palermo has been named as a temporary custodian of Carbo's powers while the latter is serving a two-year sentence in New York for illegal undercover operations in boxing.

2. Testimony by Jake LaMotta that he was offered $100,000 to throw a fight to Billy Fox in 1947 in New York's Madison Square Garden.

LaMotta testified at a June hearing that he threw the fight in return for a crack at the world middleweight title, which

Macauley's Overtime Goal Gives Cougars Second Win

Cougars 3, Comets 2
By DOUG PEDEN

It was "visiting night" for hockey brass at Memorial Arena Tuesday night.

In town for the evening and watching Victoria Cougars battle from behind for a 3-2 overtime decision over Spokane Comets and a share of the Western Hockey League lead were WHL president Al Leader, Cougar owner Jim Piggott and Kenny Reardon, vice-president of Montreal Canadiens.

Leader was just taking a casual glance at part of his seven-team circuit. Piggott dropped by for his first look at the new edition of the Cats and to discuss club business with coach George Agar.

Reardon was travelling with the Comets to get a line on Montreal farmhands who are toiling with the Spokane club and to have a squint at any good young players who happen to be around.

Kenny, a former rock'em, sock'em defenceman with the National Hockey League Canadiens, expressed particular interest in Larry McNabb of Nanaimo and Jim Holdaway, a pair of 20-year-old defencemen getting a taste of pro competition with the Comets.

He also dropped a few words that left no doubt that he was casting a professional eye at Victoria rookie Bert Fizzell, the 19-year-old winger whose contract is owned by Chicago.

"He's big and he can do a lot of things right," said Reardon. "He might turn out to be quite a hockey player."

And Fizzell proved he rated attention. The blond 195-pound forward who scored the winning goal last Friday as the Cats opened their season with a 3-2 triumph over Seattle, took another fling at heroics. He hammered home a tally midway in the third period to lift the Cougars into a 2-2 deadlock and send the argument into sudden-death overtime.

But Bert still couldn't take the spotlight away from a pair of Cougar veterans—winger Doug Macauley and goalie Marcel Pelletier.

Macauley, who was left out of the lineup while Cougars were dropping a decision at Seattle Sunday, served solid notice that he intends to nail down a regular berth for his eighth season in the Cougar camp.

The smooth-skating Macauley fired a goal in the seventh minute of the first period to get the Cougars away in front and eventually made it a happy evening for the 2,124 fans and the Cougar boss when he slapped home the winner after 2½ minutes of overtime scrambling.

Pelletier was again a spectacular figure between the pipes. He yielded a first-period tally to Max Mekliko that evened the count and Ching Johnson's second-period goal that moved Spokane ahead, but he closed the door on the dangerous Comets down the home stretch.

Marcel, who was particularly alert on a grab of a shot by Colin Kilburn and on saves against Steve Wittuk and Bev Bell, finished with a total of 27 stops, while rookie Carl Wetzel was turning aside 19 drives for the Comets, who had a slight edge in play most of the way.

Mora to Return for Warrior Clash

Fizzell notched the tying tally on a fine play with Doug Anderson and Don Wilson, who collected 49 goals for the Saskatoon Junior Quakers last season.

Passed into the clear by Anderson, Wilson forced Wetzel to make a sprawling save. Fizzell, who accounted for 47 goals with the Quakers last winter, grabbed the rebound and calmly picked the open side of the cage to keep the Cats in business.

Comets had the first dangerous chance in overtime, but the Cougars swung back on a sustained attack. The puck bounced out of a scramble to Macauley and the slender winger drilled a quick slap shot that deflected into the net off defenceman Bill Folk's stick to end hostilities for the night and give the Cats a share of first place with Vancouver and Edmonton.

Agar plans to make one change in the lineup for Saturday night's game against Winnipeg, bringing Jim Moroi back into action and resting Bill Swarbrick. However, at that time he also hopes to know who he will get from Toronto Maple Leafs in the two-player deal that brought stylish Bill Johansen to the Cats.

McCartan, 1960 U.S. Olympic team goalie, probably will replace Lorne "Gump" Worsley in the Rangers' goal. McCartan played four NHL games last spring.

NEW YORKERS BLASE

What'll They Call Club in Flushing?

NEW YORK (AP)—Blase New Yorkers today shrugged off the National Baseball League's return to the city.

But Congressman Francis E. Dorn, a Republican, protested that the franchise should be moved to Brooklyn "where it belongs."

The new team will be quartered in Flushing, where a stadium is to be erected on the site of the World's Fair grounds.

Dorn issued a call to Brooklyn fans to rally behind him.

He said he will try to find a spot suitable for a ball park if the new owners ask his help.

That's doubtful. Plans are almost completed for the new 55,000-seat stadium, to be finished for the 1962 season.

Actor William Bendix wondered how a name would be chosen for the team.

"Flushing" is not a good name for a baseball team," he scoffed.

Timer Would Take Pressure Off Ref

TORONTO (CP)—Ray Morgan, referee in a Cantalia-Italia soccer game in Montreal last Sunday, says the game needs an electric timing device.

Morgan was attacked after the National Soccer League game by fans who claimed he let the contest run two minutes overtime.

Toronto Italia tied the game 2-2 after the regulation 90 minutes but Morgan added a couple of minutes because the teams had delayed play by kicking the ball to the sidelines. Morgan claims Cantalia were the main offenders.

"A timer would be the answer to the problem and would definitely be a progressive step," Morgan said Tuesday.

In soccer, the referee is in complete control of the game including keeping the time.

League secretary Frank Thirkettle said he thinks the idea is fine, but the league couldn't afford one now.

Europe Tour Proves Costly To Boot Star

WINNIPEG (CP)—John Gawryluk, 21, of Winnipeg was fined $230 by the University of Manitoba in late registration fees when the young soccer player returned from Europe, where he travelled with the Canadian all-star soccer club that toured Russia.

Gawryluk said this week he had told the university before he left Sept. 12 he would be away. The university has insisted that he pay the regular $10 a day late registration fee from Sept. 16, Gawryluk said.

He said he has appealed to the university, but if his appeal is not granted, he will transfer to the University of Toronto. Before he left on the soccer tour, he was told by the university he might not be accepted when he returned, so he applied and was accepted by the University of Toronto.

Gawryluk, the spare goalie on the team, said the fine is intended to prevent students from working after registration date.

He has lost interest," said Patrick, "and in addition he has to work the odd night."

"He missed last week's practices because he said he was sick. It will hurt the team a little, mostly on defence where we've been using him all season."

Coach Jack Patrick said end John Catterall will be out for "at least 10 days" after suffering a six-stitch cut on a finger Tuesday while scrimmaging.

Patrick is also disturbed by the absence of guard Brian Gingell, who left the squad Tuesday night.

"He has lost interest," said Patrick, "and in addition he has to work the odd night."

"He missed last week's practices because he said he was sick. It will hurt the team a little, mostly on defence where we've been using him all season."

Belmont Swimmers Will Do Best to Prove Jim Wrong

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Stan Powell will probably accept today's compliment in humble fashion, but don't fault him for being an ingrate if "his kids" step out Friday evening to make a liar of James McCague.

It was Mr. McCague, president of the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club, who today expressed the belief that "in a year or two, Belmont will win" the team championship in the annual senior high school swimming gala.

"Stan's doing a terrific job at Belmont, and that school should be a real powerhouse in two years' time," says Jim.

McCague concedes that the powerhouse is—and has been for the past nine years—Oak Bay. Gary Taylor's splashes from Oak Bay again rule as favorites to win the Sir Edward Beatty Trophy for a 10th straight time.

It's no secret Oak Bay has more depth than the Strait of Juan de Fuca. Then, too, Oak Bay is the only school of seven entered to submit the maximum number of swimmers, 26.

Esquimalt is tossing 34 swimmers into the drink while Belmont and Victoria High each have 30. Mount View, 11. St. Ann's Academy, nine, and Norfolk House, eight, round out the parade.

It all adds up to the biggest, noisiest and most colorful event of the season at the Crystal Garden. As always, the 35th annual gala starts at 7 p.m. and the best advice offered is: wear earplugs.

But getting back to Mr. Powell, the feeling is that his Belmont splashes and Esquimalt's team will make Oak Bay earn its laurels this year.

Of course, nothing would make the one-time British Columbia backstroke champion happier than to see McCague eat his words by having his Belmont splashes win it all this year.

"Why wait two years?" asks Mr. Powell.

Why, indeed! The 29-year-old Powell began building Belmont's swim team when he accepted a physical education post there three years ago.

For Stan, the most satisfying aspect of his coaching job is the fact that all members of his team "are brought up from grass roots." Whereas Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Vic High boast several swimmers who star with the YMCA or VASC clubs, Belmont has none.

A point in case is 14-year-old Peter Parker, who last year won a gold medal at the ships. Since swimmers must be affiliated with organized clubs, Parker had to join the VASC in order to compete in the provincial meet. Prior to that, however, the only organized swimming Parker enjoyed was as a member of Belmont's team.

It's plain to see why McCague is high on Belmont, and Stan Powell.

VIKING VIEWS

Cagers Display Fine Potential

By LES MILLIN

Some of the wraps are off the '60-61 model of the senior Vikings basketball team, and it looks like a long job with plenty of power.

In a practice scrimmage Tuesday night, the new Vikings gave all the impression of a team with plenty of potential and a lot of driving power. Fine selection for the team has not yet been made, but there are some pretty safe bets.

Bill Garner, veteran of the days when Victoria College Vikings were Canadian junior men's champions, will coach the new squad.

Average height of the team is down a bit, with Darrell Lorimer at 6'5" and Ellery Littleton at 6'4" being the tallest men.

Vikings will not play in a league. All games will be exhibitions, many against American teams.

A lot of practice is needed yet, says Garner, since many of the new players have never before played together, and a certain amount of ball control is still lacking.

First game with a U.S. college will be played at home against Everett Junior College on Dec. 2.

But this is not to say that there will be no college basketball teams in league play. A second team, coached by Ken McCulloch, will be in action in the City Basketball League. If there is enough response, a third team will be formed later this season.

Rugby action on Saturday showed that the Viking "A" XV is a mighty machine indeed, but in dire need of a kicker. Playing against the "B" team, "A" racked up 10 tries for 30 points, but could convert only two of them. The "B" team got in a kick to leave the final score 34-3.

The smooth offensive action of the massive Viking front line needs only a little more coaching and practice to make it formidable, but it would be nice to see a few more converts.

Next game should be a helpful indicator of campus rugby power, when the "A" team meets Royal Roads "A" and the "B" team meets Roads "B" on Thursday at Royal Roads.

Water polo is bounding forward with the College wrestling two wins out of three games played. Their latest victory was over Royal Roads with a healthy 10-2 tally.

The team is strong on offence, with such crack swimmers as Bruce Warburton.

On the feminine side, we find the "A" grass hockey team keeping up a good record with a 10-2 defeat of the Mar-

Minor sports are many and diverse on campus, and some new ones have been added this year. The college ice hockey team had its first practice on Tuesday night, and the results look encouraging.

Big setback for the ice hockey club is the question of ice time. If the team wants to play at the arena, they have to play quite late at night, and this cramps their style if they have early lectures. But enthusiasm is high and the boys don't seem to be complaining.

Bowling got into play this week. High score for a single game went to the Misfits with 1,122. Men's high single was the 286 set by Jack Bradshaw, and Gloria Manson's 251 was the ladies' highest single effort.

College curlers glossed their first ice this week, and league play begins Thursday. Sixteen rinks make up the club, a creditable expansion over last year.

Vs Obtain Lariviere; Packers Reorganized

By The Canadian Press

Vernon Canadians and Penticton Vs displayed an abundance of scoring power Tuesday night in coasting to one-sided Okanagan Senior Hockey League victories.

The defending champion Vernon club, trounced Kamloops Chiefs 10-3 before about 700 hometown fans. Penticton romped to a 7-3 win over the reorganized Kelowna Packers in a game at Kelowna.

Veteran defenceman Tom Stecyk led Vernon with three goals, Art Davidson added two, while playing-coach Odie Lowe, Merv Bidoski, Don Jakes, Walt Trentini and Frank King had one each.

Rex Turple, Gordie Kusmoto and Bobby Gannon scored for the Chiefs.

A product of the Kelowna minor hockey ranks hurt the Packers the most, Jackie Howard, playing his first season in the OSHL, scored three goals for Penticton.

Walt Peacock scored twice for the Vs while Buddy Evans and Don Slater contributed one each. Jim Middleton, with two, and Frank Hoskins scored for Kelowna.

Officials of the Packers had indicated only four days earlier the team would pull out of the league because of lack of fan support and player co-operation. The club was reorganized Monday at a special meeting and Tuesday night's crowd was Meanwhile, Penticton expects to receive a new goal tender today in the person of Art Lariviere who has been sent to the Vs from Calgary Stampede of the Western League. Lariviere played for Kelowna last season.

Soccer Officials Hoping to Restore Fans' Confidence

LONDON (AP)—A list of 20 soccer players was drawn up Tuesday to be handed over to Scotland Yard in a report to police on alleged bribing and fixing of English League matches.

Leaders of the Football Association (FA) and the English Football League conferred on reported confessions by some star players that they accepted bribes up to £500 (£1,400) to throw games.

The next move in the scandal that has rocked British soccer will be up to the government's director of public prosecutions.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Baltimore Orioles have announced the outright purchase of the contracts of five players from Vancouver of the Pacific Coast League.

They are third baseman Don Ross, 22, who hit .343 last season in 14 games; Ron Moeller, left-handed pitcher, who won eight and lost seven; catcher Frank Zupo, who played for Stockton in the California League last season and hit .305 in 99 games; outfielder Jimmy Liggett, who hit .259 with 13 home runs in 85 games at Stockton, and outfielder Chuck Hinton, who led the league with 369 at Stockton.

DEGAN TRIUMPHS

SALT SPRING ISLAND—Nels Degnan scored 136 for 36 holes to claim the Schwenger Cup at the Salt Spring Island Golf Club recently.

RESTORE CONFIDENCE

This was interpreted as a bid to restore public confidence before permanent harm is done to Britain's national game. The scandal is threatening soccer in the same way that the Chicago Black Sox bribery disclosures threatened the future of American baseball after the 1919 world series.

America's national sport was cleaned up by the strong arm of federal judge Kenesaw M. Landis, who became baseball commissioner.

Names of the 20 players in the dossier have not been disclosed, but some stars already have admitted being involved.

POPPED BY PAUL

Roy Paul, famous internationalist for the Wales team and former captain of the first division Manchester City Club, blew the lid off. This came in a signed article in the Sunday newspaper, The People, Oct. 9. He said he twice accepted bribes—in one case $1,400—to see that Manchester City was defeated.

British soccer players all are paid the same salary—$67 a week.

Another noted player, Bobby Evans, Chelsea's Scottish international centre half, told newsmen he offered a bribe to an Everton player to throw a game against Chelsea. Evans said later it was all a joke. He was interviewed by Chelsea directors and later played for the club against Birmingham City last Saturday.

Three Nations Discuss Fish Treaty at Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP)—Twenty-four scientists from the United States, Canada and Japan have started a series of discussions here that will end with the annual meeting of the International North Pacific Fisheries Commission in Vancouver Nov. 7.

The scientists will present to the annual meeting problems dealing with herring, salmon and halibut fishing.

The terms of the North Pacific Fisheries Treaty under which Japan agrees not to fish in North American territorial waters and Canada and the U.S. agree to practice scientific methods will be discussed at the pre-commission meetings. Some 60 scientists and commission members will meet at Harrison Hot Springs starting Oct. 24 to decide on a permanent line at which North American and Asiatic species of herring, salmon and halibut meet on a commercially marketable and equitable basis.

A temporary line has been established 2,000 miles west of Vancouver. East of this the U.S. and Canada can fish for North American species. West of it the Asiatic species are prevalent and Japan can fish, subject to treaties she may have with other Asiatic countries.

Big Headrigs Thrill Crowd

CHEMAINUS—Open house this week at Che-mainus Sawmill, a division of MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd., drew a turnout of 314 people.

"We were surprised and thrilled at the large attendance," said company personnel supervisor George Beaulieu.

Most of the visitors were from out of town, coming from as far away as Victoria and Courtenay. Visitors from England, Scotland and Holland also signed the mill's register during the day.

The sawmill's giant headrigs, where the largest logs are cut, were the main attraction of the one-and-a-half-hour tour.

At Honeymoon Bay, 70 residents of the Cowichan Lake area took advantage of the opportunity to tour Western Forest Industries Ltd. sawmill.

DUNCAN—A Port Alberni proposal that bass be removed from all Vancouver Island lakes will be opposed by Cowichan Fish and Game Club, which contends the scheme would be too costly and leave many lakes barren.

Instead, the Cowichan club suggests the game branch begin a program to educate the public against the harmful practice of transferring bass from one lake to another. This practice is on the increase, said president Lewis Langlois, and should be checked before serious damage is done to a major trout river or lake system.

The Port Alberni suggestion still has to come before a meeting of the Vancouver Island Affiliated Fish and Game Association.

DUNCAN—Graveside services were held at Mount View Cemetery this morning for Valmore Carleton, 79, who died Monday at Mary Moore Salvation Army Hospital, Cobble Hill.

NANAIMO—Winter works projects estimated at $15,500 were approved by city council this week.

Two of the projects, improvements to Westwood Lake and Bowen Parks, will keep 10 men employed for 51 days. A proposal by Art Lionel, head of the Nanaimo Library Building Society, that the city include the new library in a winter works program, was referred to the city for action.

B.C. Indian Arts and Welfare Society is preparing to help Vancouver Island Indians who face a hard winter because of a poor fishing season and looming unemployment. Prof. C. S. Burchill said Tuesday night.

He warned, though, that the solution to the Indian problem lies in establishment of income-producing businesses in their areas rather than in granting relief each year.

Because of the plight of the west coast Indians, who rely heavily on fishing for their livelihood, the Indian Affairs Branch has planned a series of winter works projects to include cleanup of villages, laying of plank sidewalks, removal of old buildings, clearing roads, cutting wood fuel for indigents, and building waterworks.

GOV'T PROBE ASKED BY ALBERNI'S MAYOR

ALBERNI—Mayor Mabel Anderson announced at a meeting of city council this week she will call for an investigation of the city's business by the Municipal Affairs Department.

Since she took office almost a year ago, there has been friction between her and council, but this marks the first time she has threatened this type of action.

Three times she was overruled when she refused to put motions made by aldermen and was blocked by council when she said she had the right to make motions from the chair.

YOUNG CHUM CALLED HELP

Air Pockets Saved Boy From Drowning

CHEMAINUS—Air pockets in his jacket have been credited with saving the life of three-year-old Keith Hess, who was pulled unconscious from an abandoned well Tuesday after being at least 15 minutes in the water.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Murray W. Hess, North Che-mainus Highway, and today is reported in good condition. The accident occurred on the property of a neighbor, George Robinson.

Mrs. Pat Allester said she paid little attention when her two-year-old son, Carl, said "Keith fell in the water." She said she thought he was referring to a mud puddle.

Keith had apparently been playing with Carl at the well when he fell in. Carl walked home to tell his mother.

Mrs. Allester said she realized that something was wrong when she heard Keith's mother

FACE DOWN

"He was lying face down in the water about two feet below the ledge. He was unconscious and blue with cold," she said.

Mrs. Hess gave her son mouth-to-mouth respiration and was bringing him back to consciousness when an inhalator squad arrived.

Surprise Drop In Jobless In Late Summer

OTTAWA (CP)—Reversing a late-summer trend, unemployment in Canada declined by 25,000 between mid-August and mid-September but the jobless total, 327,000 at Sept. 17, was still a postwar record for the month, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The figure was 102,000 higher than mid-September last year and 42,000 higher than the 1958 postwar peak for the month.

The official unemployment report said the labor force was 183,000 higher than a year earlier and employment was 81,000 higher.

This was the first report based on recommendations of a nine-man committee set up last March to work out an official measurement of unemployment in the country. The committee's yardstick was approved by the government.

The drop in the September unemployment total reverses a trend of rising unemployment in the previous two months.

The government report—a joint release from the federal labor department and the bureau of statistics—said most of the decline in unemployment took place in Ontario, partly as a result of automobile workers going back to their jobs for new-model production.

The new jobless yardstick, which adds those "without work and seeking work" to workers on temporary layoff up to 30 days, placed 5.1 per cent of the September labor force in the ranks of the unemployed. This compares with 5.3 per cent in August and 3.6 per cent in September, 1959.

Against this national average, the unemployment rate was higher in the Atlantic, Quebec and Pacific regions, but considerably lower in the Ontario and Prairie regions, the report said.

School Opening, Harvest Big Factors

The labor department said the return of students to school and the completion of a large part of Canada's big harvest were the main features of August-September labor trends.

The result was a large decrease in the size of the labor force, a somewhat smaller drop in employment and a moderate decline in unemployment.

For the third quarter of 1960 as a whole, the increase over last year in the number of people at work was 1.4 per cent, largely because more women are being employed, particularly in trade and services of all kinds.

Of the 327,000 unemployed in September, 268,000 were men. The number on temporary layoff, 22,000, was relatively high for this time of year, the report said.

All labor force figures from 1945 to the present have been amended to reflect the new unemployment yardstick. They show the previous highest unemployment total for September was in 1958—the worst post-war year for unemployment—when 285,000 were out of work, 42,000 fewer than last month.

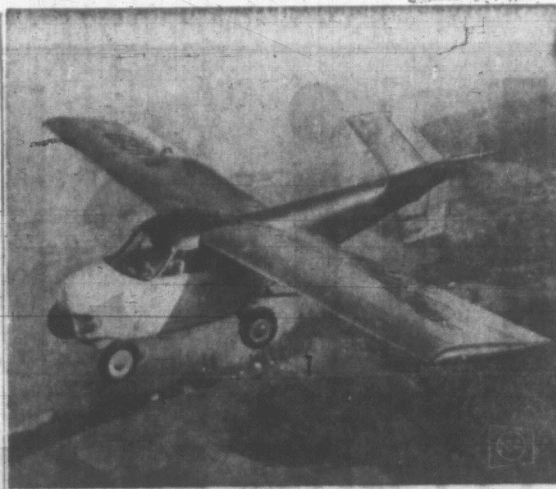

This is the unemployment picture for B.C.

A drop in unemployment brought the September total to 41,000 from 44,000 in August. However, it remained higher than September last year when there were 24,000 people out of work. The number of unemployed amounted to 7.2 per cent of the labor force compared with 4.3 per cent a year earlier.

Employment was also lower, partly because of a seasonal decline in farm employment and widely-distributed layoffs in the service-producing groups and in manufacturing. Logging and sawmilling work remained at reduced levels, but construction remained fairly stable.

Cloudburst Hits City

VICTORIA, Tex. (AP)—A cloudburst left this south Texas city paralyzed and flooded Tuesday night and police said water, from three to 10 feet deep, stood in every section of the city. Police dispatcher M. P. Wilden said "thousands" of cars were stranded and that scores of homes were being evacuated.

The Aerocar holds two persons and 100 pounds of luggage.

'GO AHEAD AND CHARGE ME'

A Saanich dog's bark put his owner in Saanich police court Thursday as a neighbor complained of noise that disturbed him Sept. 26.

The case—in which it is alleged that David C. Wright, 5367 Ruston, keeps a noisy dog—was adjourned to Oct. 25 for decision by Magistrate William Ostler.

John A. Long, Wright's next-door neighbor at 5366 Ruston, complained to police at 2 a.m. Sept. 26, the dog, a large black one, "I think some kind of collie," kept him, awake by barking off and on from midnight.

Long said his bedroom window was open and he found it impossible to sleep. He called police, for the third time since May.

HIGHLY STRUNG
The dog, he said, was "highly strung and barks at the slightest provocation."

"How can you be sure it was my dog?" Wright asked.

"There are other dogs in the area."

"There is no doubt as to the tone of your dog's bark," Long countered, even though he had not seen the animal that night. He said he had "heard the dog and been disturbed by it for more than a year."

'CHARGE ME'

Cons. Harry Coote, Saanich police, said he went to Wright's house at about 2:30 a.m. and the dog was barking as they talked.

The constable said Wright admitted it was his dog and said "Go ahead and charge me."

The accused subsequently denied he had said it was his dog barking.

Another neighbor, Edwin Thorson, 5368 Sparton, testified for Wright that he had

JAPANESE TUBES 'SERIOUS PROBLEM'

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada wants Japan to control immediately exports to this country of radio and television tubes.

Finance Minister Fleming said Tuesday night in an address to the Canadian Woolen and Knit Goods Manufacturers' Association that a rapid and accelerating increase in imports of Japanese tubes is a "serious problem."

"We have pressed the Japanese government to take urgent steps to place these under immediate control."

Mr. Fleming mentioned the tubes in the course of an address in which he hinted that the federal government also is considering action to assist the textile industry to meet competition from low-cost countries.

While Japan has placed export quotas on certain textiles moving into the Canadian market, imports from Hong Kong had increased substantially.

Further increases would bring about a return to the "disorderly situation" which the Japanese controls were intended to avoid.

BAN DRIVE FUTILE

'Educate Them About Raw Milk'

Victoria-Esquamalt Health Board Tuesday decided raw milk is undesirable but here to stay until an educational campaign convinces the public it should be banned.

Board members were informed that about 115 gallons of raw milk are sold daily in the city and Esquamalt alone.

Chairman R. H. Reeve said "every gallon is a potential danger" to the public because raw milk could cause tuberculosis, rheumatic fever, scarlet fever, undulant fever, and many other illnesses.

TWO PER CENT

Ald. Elmer McEwen argued that the 115 gallons were less than 2 per cent of total milk sales.

"That's just like building an iron-clad protection around 98 per cent of the people and leaving the other 2 per cent as a highway for disease," countered Mr. Reeve.

Because raw milk drinkers could contract illnesses that would spread to pasteurized milk drinkers "the whole structure of protection breaks down," he said.

But Esquamalt Coun. Gerald Sammon summed up the board's final position.

He said raw milk is undesirable and the board felt it should be banned. But at the same time, it was obvious that a prohibition bylaw could not be forced on the people because civic councils only recently had refused to ban raw milk.

"It is a Canadian trait that we don't like compulsion," he said.

Instead of futilely asking councils to enact prohibitive legislation against raw milk, the board should undertake an educational campaign so that ultimately only pasteurized milk would be acceptable to the public.

"I agree with that," said board member Walter Thomson, "but what if there is an epidemic in the meantime?"

"Well, that's the hard part of educational campaigns," replied Coun. Sammon.

THE EFFECTIVENESS OF SUSTAINED RELEASE MEDICATION DOES NOT DIMINISH, BUT REMAINS AT A THERAPEUTIC LEVEL FOR A PROLONGED PERIOD!

Modern pharmacology has made Sustained Release Medication possible by incorporating groups of medicated minigrains in one capsule. The different minigrains in each capsule are released in the system at measured intervals, to

Through the unique principle of Sustained Release Medication, ORNAL lets this combination of ingredients work with maximum therapeutic effect over a prolonged period. Yet, ORNAL costs no more than conventional cold remedies

Now, the principle of Sustained Release Medication has been applied to an entirely new cold symptom remedy—ORNAL.

TO RURAL AREAS

Fluorides Program Extended in Sask.

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan Health Minister Walter Erb announced Tuesday that fluoride tablets will be distributed for children under school age in rural areas to help prevent tooth decay.

Public water supplies in 13 urban areas of the province are fluoridated. Mr. Erb said the new move will extend dental decay prevention to youngsters in farm areas or communities without public water supplies.

Dr. A. E. Chegwin, provincial director of dental health, is in charge of the program. He said 2,500,000 fluoride tablets are available for distribution.

ONE-A-DAY

Starting immediately regional health officers will supply fluoride tablets for one-a-day consumption by children under school age.

Dr. Chegwin said that tablet distribution is a partial answer to the problem of widespread dental disease among rural children, an acute shortage and maldistribution of dentists, and faulty eating habits.

The effectiveness of this program will depend largely on the parents of the children for whom it is intended, he said. They will have to get free supplies from the health region in which they live and see to it that the pre-school children get one daily each.

UP TO CITIES

The free distribution does not extend to families in cities or towns which have piped public water supplies. Addition of fluoride to such water supplies where analysis indicates the need is a municipal responsibility.

This is the ideal way to give all children the benefits of the health measure, Dr. Chegwin said. The tablet distribution and topical application of fluorides to teeth, painting the teeth with fluorides are second and third best methods.

Even under the most favorable circumstances, of children receiving adequate fluoride in water supplies, a reduction of only 60 per cent in dental decay can be expected, Dr. Chegwin said. This is why the tablet program is only partial solution, although this is much better than no solution at all, he said.

'BLOODY REVOLUTION' FEARED FOR S. AFRICA

TORONTO (CP)—The United Nations may have to take control of South Africa for a period of 10 to 20 years to prevent a bloody revolution, author Alan Paton said Tuesday.

He told an audience of 700 at a Unitarian church here he believes there is no "hope" at all the South African government will change its heart about apartheid.

Mr. Paton, an active opponent of apartheid, author of the novel "Cry, the Beloved Country," and head of the South African Liberal Party, said "a kind of agony" is occurring in his country because of its racial beliefs.

He told of a man who had come home one day to find two government representatives who said they had private information that he had Negro blood.

"So corrupted are we in South Africa that his wife immediately denounced him and his three children now are marked as colored," Mr. Paton said.

He said in an interview later that only an effective boycott of the South African economy would persuade the government to abandon its racial policies.

$82,785 DONATED

Home Campaign Starts Tonight

Donations to the Community Chest campaign jumped more than $3,000 overnight to make a total of $82,785 collected, so far towards this year's record goal of $350,000.

Tonight sees the start of the residential campaign. An army of about 1,500 canvassers will call on 43,000 homes in the Greater Victoria area during the next few days in a "blitz" attempt to raise $65,000.

Mrs. J. Beattie MacLean, residential chairman, appealed to residents to be courteous and generous when the Chest canvasser calls.

Last year many canvassers complained they had been treated rudely, she said. One was bitten by a dog so this year she is asking dog owners to keep their animals under control.

"We can't stress too much the importance of making recalls," she advised canvassers. "Frequently people ask to be called on after pay-day and canvassers forget."

"If each canvasser collects only $20 on recalls it will account for an extra $30,000 for Community Chest—and that is half what we are aiming for in the residential campaign."

"I think we will realize about the same amount as last year ($66,000) but the public's attitude seems to be brighter this year."

"In future years, however, with greater use being made of payroll deduction schemes, I think the residential total is bound to drop," she said.

Dynamite-Laden Truck in Smash

CAMPBELL RIVER — A truck loaded with dynamite collided with another vehicle Tuesday on the Camp 5 road, but both drivers escaped injury.

They were Pete Konklin, Ladysmith, on the dynamite truck, and George Fearing, Willow Point. Damage to the truck was estimated at $500.

HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE in Turkey today heard pleas of innocent to charges of treason by former premier Adnan Menderes, left, and ousted president Celal Bayar. Both told the court, trying more than 400 deposed government officials that demonstrations and anti-Greek riots in Istanbul in September, 1955, were spontaneous—not planned.

Police Hunting Mixed-Up Youth

City police are looking for a young man who has left a trail of bewildered women in his wake after encounters on the street, and in households on two successive nights.

With little variation the man has been described by six women and an 18-year-old boy following reports Tuesday night of:

1. A youth who tried to kiss one of the women.
2. Asked to use the telephone at two other places.
3. Wanted to know at a third place how to get downtown.

HE'S BUSY

And on Monday night was reported to have knocked down a 74-year-old woman walking her dog, tried to rent a room from a woman who refused to open her door and attempted to force his way into another woman's apartment.

In each case he is described as being between 19 and 22, with long hair combed straight back and wearing a light car coat and dark trousers. Two women said he was blond, one adding that he seemed stocky.

Mrs. H. Smith, 3024 Quadra, told police Tuesday a youth knocked on her door at 9 p.m. and wanted to use her bathroom, which she permitted.

SCREAMED

When he returned to the front of the woman's house he threw his arms around her and tried to kiss her, police were told.

Mrs. Smith screamed and the youth ran.

Minutes later a youth turned up at 1132 Finlayson, home of Mrs. Joseph Beales, and was allowed to use the telephone. He left when Mrs. Beales mentioned the presence in the house of Ernest Bitterman, who lives at the same address.

In the next block, at the home of Mrs. Patricia Coombe, 1050 Finlayson, a youth wanted to "telephone his mother," Mrs. Coombe said.

"ODD NUMBERS"

"He dialed a bunch of odd numbers and muttered something about the line being busy."

"I started to get nervous. I stood by the door and held it open," she said, and when she mentioned that her husband was home, he left.

Next door, at 1040 Finlayson, Brent Draper, about 18, answered when the stranger knocked to ask directions to town and left quietly.

'Race Bias Will End Commonwealth'

MONTREAL (CP) — G. V. Ferguson, editor-in-chief of The Montreal Star, said Tuesday he does not think the Commonwealth has a future.

He told members of St. James Literary Society the recent history of the Commonwealth indicated "a continued crumbling of what was, 50 years ago, a reasonably close-knit association of colonies and states."

"Each increasingly goes its own way, each develops a distinctive behavior pattern of its own."

"If there is any single fact that will pull down what is left of the Commonwealth and Empire it is racial discrimination and its social and economic consequences."

"I do not believe that we can adjust our thinking, either public or private, in time to save us."

Car Crash Kills Baby Girl

(Compiled from CP)

PRINCE GEORGE — A 10-month-old girl was killed and four other persons were injured in a head-on collision four miles from here Tuesday night.

The dead girl was Sherry Jo Guterson. Her parents, Elmer, 29, and Julianne Guterson, 22, of Prince George were among those admitted to hospital.

George Edward Buck of Nanaimo and Patricia McLean, occupants of the other car, were also injured.

sentenced Alexander McDonald to nine months for impaired driving and barred him from driving for three years. It was McDonald's fifth conviction for impaired driving and he had twice been convicted of drunken driving.

VICTIM IDENTIFIED

KAMLOOPS — RCMP have released the name of one of two men killed or drowned early Tuesday when a light truck left the highway and plunged 70 feet into the Nicola River, five miles east of Spences Bridge.

A third man survived the crash. Stewart Coma, 18, of Spences Bridge smashed a window and climbed up the cliff before walking five miles to lead police to the scene. The body of Wayne Raugh, 17, of Spences Bridge was recovered by a skin diver.

The identity of the second dead man has not been determined.

Police said he was a hitchhiker the youths picked up at Merritt. The man, carried no identification and was about 30 years old.

Mr. Ralston Becomes 'Very Rigid'

By J. W. PICKERSGILL
(12th of a series)

After Pearl Harbor it had been agreed that the full cabinet should consider the manpower program in a series of meetings in the following week. Before these meetings were held the United States was at war.

Mackenzie King opened the first meeting of the session on Dec. 9, by outlining the proposals of the Army, Navy and Air Force.

Then he had each Minister outline his proposals, in greater detail "to indicate what it would require in the way of manpower." Mention was also made of the manpower survey, and how it was proposed to allot different classes and individuals into branches of the war effort in which they were likely to render the greatest service.

"I then pointed out the discussion would lead inevitably to the question of conscription for overseas service, and that I thought we had better have the views of all honestly and fearlessly given as to consequences of the adoption of such a policy."

When the statements had been made by all the ministers, Mackenzie King "said very quickly that except at the time we had come into the war itself, I had never felt more proud of my colleagues than I had in the last 24 hours."

Pickersgill

The Cabinet "took up anew the army program, Ralston presenting it carefully and quietly. Ralston pressed the matter to the point of saying that, as minister of defence, he would have to say on the floor of Parliament that he could not say whether we could get the men for the program by voluntary enlistment or not. We were, however, determined to get them. If we could not get them voluntarily he, himself, would feel we would have to resort to conscription."

Firmer Stand

"I took the position that we were sitting at the table owed it to those from whom we got our power, namely, the people's representatives in Parliament, not to adopt any policy which involved conscription until they, themselves, had approved of our so doing; that it was known to us all present that, at the last caucus, the party had unanimously approved the Government's standing out against conscription, and that the prospect of Meighen's coming into the House had made them the firmer in that stand."

"I said if, when we met the party, they wished to have the situation altered and support conscription, that would be time enough to face the issue."

Mackenzie King noted that as the discussion continued it became "somewhat warmer. Power does not agree with Ralston's methods. Think if he would call out more men for local defence, he could get all he needed in the way of voluntary enlistment. Ralston sticks to the idea that men are not needed for local defence."

Cross-Section

"What had been said at the table might be taken as a miniature cross-section of the attitude of the country. That I felt we were all of one mind in feeling that the unity of the country was an all important factor in the war effort. It was evident from what had been expressed that that unity would be seriously endangered by conscription."

"I would be careful taking any step on our part that would make conscription necessary; that short of that, I thought we should work out a program going as far as we possibly can to meet what the defence forces regard as essential; that I believed this could be done."

End of Liberals

"Macdonald had been saying he thought the province of Quebec was mistaken in its view. Also that it might come to see things differently. Cardin told them how the Liberal party had come back with a solid Quebec following after conscription in the last war, and said he believed there would no longer be a Liberal party worthy of the name in Canada if an attempt at conscription were repeated."

"He very pointedly asked what the policy of the government was. What was the stand we would take when confronted with a resolution, an amendment moved by Meighen advocating conscription for overseas. That there would have to be solidarity and responsibility."

"Some mention was made of a referendum, and the stand that should be taken on it. I told the cabinet quite frankly that if there was a referendum, as there might be, I, for one, would speak very strongly against supporting conscription on the ground that it would divide the country as to make an effective war effort impossible."

No Misgivings

"I said that I had no misgivings as to what was likely to take place; that perhaps I felt as I did because of having been so much with Sir Wilfrid during the time that his colleagues left him one by one; that I fully expected to pass through a similar Gethsemane."

"I made it absolutely clear that I would not support conscription but would openly oppose it because of the injury it would do to our war effort."

Mackenzie King pointed out that "Ralston himself is really the one who has precipitated the whole issue. He seems to me to be quite overwrought and is liable to either break or tender his resignation. If he does not get his own way."

At the cabinet meeting next day (Dec. 16), Ralston asked whether it was intended "to pursue the disagreeable subject of the previous week."

Ralston "said he wanted his colleagues to know that, if the subject of conscription came up on the Address (when the new session opened in January, 1942) he would have to say that he felt it was necessary to get the men required for overseas. At another stage, he said he was debating whether he should not leave the government before parliament met."

Mackenzie King added that "it was another trying day in the cabinet, but I was able to keep calm and, I think, to steady the situation somewhat."

"Ralston, however, is becoming very rigid and I find it difficult, except because of commitments he has already made to some in the department, to understand his attitude. It lacks vision and statesmanship altogether. I do not forget that he is thoroughly sincere in believing that the war can only be won across the ocean and that it will be the army that will be looked to in the end."

"The mistake he makes is that another division or two from Canada will not compensate for what will be lost in the more effective action in other directions."

Dodge Showdown

By this time, Mackenzie King was looking for some way of avoiding a showdown in the cabinet as well as in Parliament and Dec. 16 was the day he first began seriously to think of holding a referendum or plebiscite on the question of conscription.

When the question of a referendum was raised in a cabinet meeting again on Dec. 23, Mackenzie King found both Cardin and Dandurand unfavorable. They feared that the announcement of a referendum would be taken as a sign the government was considering conscription and that it would lead to a nationalist victory in Quebec.

"The cabinet did not discuss the question of conscription and a possible referendum again until the new year."

In the last week of 1941, Churchill's visit to North America occupied the centre of the stage. Malcolm Macdonald had tea with Mackenzie King at Laurier House on Dec. 22.

They were discussing what might be best to have Churchill do in Ottawa "when the telephone rang . . . the operator said that the President wished to speak to me. In a few minutes, I heard the President's voice saying: 'Hello Mackenzie' and then I replied: 'Hello Mr. President. I am glad to hear your voice again.'

He said: 'I am glad indeed to hear yours. You probably know about a certain person who is on his way. He will be arriving in about two hours' time. I will want you here while he is here.' He then said: 'We will be having an important discussion here. It will be to work out a long-range policy and also a short-range policy as regards the war. There will have to be a supreme council, and I am determined it shall have its headquarters in Washington.'

Saw Churchill

In the afternoon of Dec. 27, Mackenzie King and the defence ministers went to the White House where they first saw Mr. Churchill by himself.

Representatives of other Commonwealth countries were also present. The conversation was very general. Nothing was said about the unity of command or strategy. . . . In answer to my question as to whether there was more we could do that was being done or done differently, McCarthy (the Canadian Minister to the United States) said: 'more production than men,' which caused Churchill to say 'I need all the men I can get.'

"The President looked to me pretty tired and it was clear they were both just tilling in time, while behind the scenes the chiefs of the two staffs were working together. Churchill is beginning to look rather flabby and tired."

The next day (Dec. 28) Churchill and Mackenzie King left for Ottawa in adjoining cars on the same train.

The great event of the visit was Churchill's speech in the House of Commons Chambers on Dec. 30, to which members of both Houses of Parliament and representatives of the press across Canada had been specially invited.

"Churchill made a kindly and, I felt, just the right reference to myself, all circumstances considered, referring to me on the personal side as an old friend, and on the public side, as having been Prime Minister fifteen years out of twenty which helped to bring that fact anew to the public mind."

Intimate Hours

"Of the whole visit he wrote: 'I feel deeply grateful the visit had gone without incident of any kind that was unpleasant or harmful. I had been with him practically all the time and we have shared most of the hours together and in a very intimate way. I found his nature wonderfully kind, sympathetic and understanding. He is particularly quick to see a political situation.'

TYPHOON TOLL MAY BE HIGHER THAN 3,000

CALCUTTA (AP)—The storm-torn offshore islands of East Pakistan remained cut off from the mainland city, eight days after a cyclone hit the islands.

Reports reaching Dacca, East Pakistan, from various sources indicate death toll might be heavier than the 3,000 officially estimated.

A Dacca newspaper Tuesday published a list of 1,753 victims in last week's disaster. The list covers only a fraction of the territory hit by the cyclone, while people reaching Dacca from the estuary side of the Bakerganj and Noakhali district reported they had seen hundreds of bodies floating around.

PENSIONER HELD BACK FROM WALL OF FLAME

Man Burned Out Week After Arrival

A week after moving into a one-room apartment on May Street, 84-year-old Mortimer W. Hames was driven out by fire which caused over $1,000 damage in the two-storey building at 4.30 p.m. Tuesday.

He was alone in the house when flames from a burning shed next door crept up an outer wall and into the windows and woodwork, destroying most of the ground-floor furnishings.

Gave Alarm

Mr. Hames, who came here from Vancouver last week, went outside to give the alarm, then tried to go back to his second-floor rear room to gather up his belongings, but was stopped by a passerby.

Percy South, 241 Beechwood, said he had just dropped off a passenger as he drove home from work, saw the fire and with three other men ran into the house to check for occupants.

He stopped the elderly pensioner as he mounted the stairs. The top was blocked by flames.

The fire started from undetermined cause in the wooden lean-to at the rear of 1321 May, an old, frame house which had been unoccupied for more than a year.

Fire Chief James Bayliss said it had been locked up, but that children could get into the shed without difficulty.

Damage to the empty house was heavy and probably beyond repair.

Caretakers of the rooming house, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Meagher, who were looking after the building for owner Mrs. Gladys Mason, Vancouver, were away from home during the fire.

Mr. Meagher is a patient at Royal Jubilee Hospital and his wife was visiting him Tuesday, neighbors said.

They carried no insurance on their property in the lower floor.

Two other roomers, George Simmons, 80, and Joseph Toth, were absent at the time.

"I was in my room about 4 p.m. when I saw smoke coming in my window," Mr. Hames related.

Shut Window

"I shut the window in a hurry and went downstairs to see if anyone knew the fire department telephone number, being a stranger here."

He was taken to a rest home for the night.

Across the street, Carlo Baird, 14, of 1310 May, said she looked out about 4.30 and saw smoke coming out of the shed and called to her mother.

Firemen arrived with major equipment because of the fire's location, a neighborhood of older, multi-storey homes with a new three-storey apartment building across the street.

The unoccupied house and shed were property of Moss Street storekeeper Sam Kee.

Big Quadra Job Starts in 1961

Paving, Walks, Lights

Saanich will go ahead with its full reconstruction program for Quadra Street next year as the result of a provincial government decision Tuesday to pay for half the cost of paving, Councillor Stanley Murphy, chairman of council's lands and planning committee, said today.

Council this year feared it would be forced to curtail its road program for Quadra because of lack of funds, he said, but the government move will permit it to go ahead.

"It will permit us to pave, and to install sidewalks and street lighting all along Quadra," he said.

Quadra, previously unclassified and therefore officially ineligible for aid, was reclassified by the cabinet as a secondary highway from Tolmie Avenue at the city boundary to the Patricia Bay Highway.

The cabinet also agreed to pay half the cost for the reconstruction of the 2.2-mile section.

WIDENED

This year Saanich spent $70,000 in widening and improving Quadra from Tolmie to Cloverdale. It had hoped to extend the project to Reynolds with government assistance, but was forced to drop its plan because of a money shortage.

Coun. Murphy said Saanich next year will complete the section of Quadra between Cloverdale and Reynolds, including the installation of lights and sidewalks.

The remaining portion of Quadra to Patricia Bay, he said, would probably be completed in 1962.

CUT CONGESTION

"Quadra is one of the most important inter-municipal routes," he said. "When it is completely reconstructed it will do much to alleviate traffic congestion on the Patricia Bay Highway."

The cabinet at the same time reclassified a section of Gorge Road from Harriet to Admirals, a distance of 1.7 miles, as a secondary highway.

LOSE OUT

It was formerly classified as an arterial highway. This means a loss in government aid if it is improved by Saanich.

Gorge was formerly eligible for 100 per cent aid on construction and maintenance costs.

Now, as a secondary, it's eligible for 50 per cent construction or reconstruction, 40 per cent maintenance.

Pilot's Widow Gets Veterans' Scholarship

Two outstanding Victoria College students will receive $100 Army, Navy, and Air Force Veterans' Association scholarships at the quarterly meeting of the association Thursday night.

They are Mrs. Peta-Ann Jackson, mother of three children, and widow of water bomber pilot Victor Jackson, killed when his plane crashed near Kelowna July 22, and Anthony George Wilden, who qualified for college by taking grade 13 through private study.

Recipients had to be the sons or daughters of war veterans to qualify. Mr. Wilden's father lives in England, and Mrs. Jackson is the daughter of Group Capt. and Mrs. E. A. McGowan of Victoria.

GOING BACK TO RUSSIA

Reds Won't Worry Elderly City Pair

After 46 years in the New World, two Russian immigrants leave Victoria this week on the start of a 7,000-mile journey back to their homeland.

Communists don't bother them — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moskaluk, 731 Market, have only one aim, they want to see their family again.

DAUGHTER STAYING

One daughter, Mrs. Sonja Pawlyshyn, is in Victoria but back in their home town of Tomachow, in the Ukraine, they have another daughter, three grandchildren, five great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

Until 1949, Mr. Moskaluk farmed in Saskatchewan and as he put it "worked very, very hard and suffered many setbacks through crop failures."

He and his wife took out naturalization papers in 1933. They moved to Victoria on retirement.

They will travel to Russia with one-way tickets — on the Polish liner Batory.

THESE ARE YOUR BITTER DAYS. THESE ARE YOUR DAYS OF HARDSHIP AND STRUGGLE.

BUT IF YOU'LL JUST HOLD YOUR HEAD UP HIGH, AND KEEP ON FIGHTING, SOMEDAY YOU'LL TRIUMPH!

Education Report Completed

Education Minister Leslie Peterson said today the B.C. cabinet will decide when the Chant Royal Commission report is made public.

Dean S. N. F. Chant of the University of B.C. said Tuesday his report on education will be given to the government next week.

Mr. Peterson said he had received no notice so far.

Mr. Chant said his 800-page report contained "many recommendations."

"Some could go into effect at the opening of the 1961 school year, others would take much longer to implement."

Mr. Peterson said he has no idea what's in the report, nor what action the government will take.

"I can't say how soon it will be released," he said.

The report goes first to Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, and from there to the cabinet.

MONTE ROBERTS

The folks around these parts who are forever workin' for the tourist dollar have come up with another slogan, namely "The Mediterranean Area of Canada."

Let me say at once, I am not against this new slogan. I am not such a one as says "Swallow the Birds" is a better tourist device than Capt. Discardant, or that mercury lights won't out-lustre the cluster.

I am all for a change.

But what worries me is, what are the Mediterranean countries going to say when they hear about our slogan "The Mediterranean Area of Canada?"

Will they pass it off with a Latin shrug, or will their semi-tropical blood come to a boil? Will they act through the United Nations, or will they take retaliatory measures on a unilateral basis?

I rather fear the latter course will be followed, with tourist bureaus on both shores of the Roman Sea coining slogans to hurl back at Victoria.

Such as:

Follow the birds to the Riviera.

The Casbah—the Fan Tan alley of Algiers.

The Matterhorn—Switzerland's answer to Mount Douglas.

Venice—the Sooke Pot Holes of Italy.

The Colosseum—Rome's own Athletic Park.

Monte Carlo—the Kinsmen's giant Bingo of Southern France.

Gibraltar—firm as Ripple Rock.

Mayor Hopeful On Boys' Club

Old Firehall Lease Discussed As Aldermen Warm Up to Plan

Mayor Percy Scurrah today said he was hopeful that a Victoria branch of the Boys' Clubs of Canada will be established in the old No. 2 firehall at Camosun and Yates.

He expressed optimism after a 45-minute meeting between council members and representatives of the organization.

The club, which aims at helping underprivileged boys who would not normally join youth organizations, applied for a three-year lease on the vacant firehall at $1 a year.

WORRIED

Some aldermen were known to be worried that other youth organizations would consider such a lease as a precedent and, in their turn, request virtually free accommodation from the city.

Today's private meeting with the club's representatives was held "to try to iron out some of the difficulties," said the mayor.

"But I'm hoping that we will be able to establish a boys' club in Victoria at the firehall."

QUALIFIED

"This organization has experienced and qualified directors and experience has shown that that can make these clubs successful in helping with the juvenile delinquency problem."

A decision on the club's request is expected at the next council meeting.

BEER NOT MINT

Blue Bill Not What She Hoped

Mrs. Joyce Mee, 303 Government, was excited when she discovered she had a blue $1 Canadian bill—but it was probably beer and not the Mint that made it that way.

The bill is a normal green on its front side where the monarch is portrayed. But the prairie scene on the back is a pale blue, with three small greenish spots.

"I first noticed it when someone was going to give me change for a $5 bill about a week ago. Since then two people have refused to take it," she said.

She decided to hang onto it in case it proved valuable.

One coin collector said he had heard of the bills changing color after being washed with an ingredient containing ammonia.

But another said two or three of the two-colored $1 bills had been found here in the past and finally one was sent to the Mint.

Back came this explanation: When a bill is soaked with beer and laid flat on a table—a relatively common occurrence in beer parlors—the side exposed to the air sometimes undergoes a chemical change to a pale blue color.

Mrs. Claude Harrison, of the Malahat, wife of former Mayor Harrison was treated for minor arm and forehead injuries and released from St. Joseph's Hospital after a tumble over a construction job hose Tuesday morning.

The hose was being used by a lighting department crew installing a sidewalk cable at Gates and Government and was partly protected by a barrier, but Mrs. Harrison fell at an uncovered length, police said.

Court was told Robinson failed to comply with a commission request for certain documents within a prescribed period.

Visiting a Sick Friend? Take Along 'A Wee Gittie'

By PENNY SAVER

If you have a friend or neighbor who is confined to the house with a cold, plan to visit her soon and take along a gift of marmalade just to remind her that you're thinking of her! Ones I've seen are imported from England and china jars are gaily decorated with pictures of old vintage cars and pastoral Old Country scenes. Inside is one pound of the most delicious Seville marmalade you've ever tasted. Just the kind to make a patient feel well in a hurry!

You can get one for the small sum of $1.45.

Very few children can resist a hamburger lunch. You'll be able to whip up one in a hurry when you have one of the attractive wooden hamburger presses that are selling in a downtown store.

They are decorated with a couple of the proudest roosters you ever saw. Painted with red combs, yellow bodies and green tail feathers—they're fun to see.

Presses are fitted with hinges. Just place meat between the two halves and you'll have lunch ready in next to no time. Whether it's hamburgers, sausage patties or fish cakes that you're planning—handy presses will save you precious minutes. These sell at 59 cents.

Pencil sharpeners, shaped like a ship's wheel, will make school and homework a breeze for younger members of the family. What's more, each has its own little built-in compass. Imagine the adventure of being able to plot one's way to and from school!

Novelty sharpeners come in either green or red plastic and have a large receptacle that will hold plenty of shavings—no matter how many pencil points get broken.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

For Social Success Have An Accurate 'Self Image'

I always have thought, and have written in this column many times, that a woman is apt to live up to the picture she has of herself. If she thinks of herself as attractive, it affects her in many ways.

The picture she holds in her mind influences the way she carries her head, the way she walks, her mannerisms, her facial expression and therefore her facial contour, and the clothes she buys.

Of course it also affects her personality drastically. If she feels unattractive, she may be self-conscious and retiring. If she feels attractive, she is likely to be more outgoing and have self-confidence which puts her at ease and makes it possible for her to forget herself.

Psychologists and psychiatrists now speak of the "self image" or the picture a person has of himself. Today these self images are felt to be the key to many emotional problems and conflicts in human relationships. Our self image is influenced or created in us by those who were important to us in early youth.

We usually get these from the remarks and attitudes of our parents when we are children or very young people. Sometimes the self image is influenced most by a favorite relative or teacher. At any rate, our self image has a terrific effect on the way we look and the way we act.

Most of us have a physical self image, or a definite picture of the way we think we look, and also a mental self image, or a definite idea of the sort of person we are and what we are like. Sometimes the self image we have is not at all like we really are.

Any saleslady will tell you how very wrong the self images of many women are. If a woman thinks of herself as very young she may buy clothes which would look well only on a slim 20. However, this is much better than having an unattractive self image. If a woman thinks of herself as unattractive because of some defect in beauty, she may actually become unattractive in appearance.

What a perfect time to wear beads, in a delectable array of hues to match Fall's gay foliage. They make those classic clothes alive with new... add just the right finishing touch to that latest ensemble. Smoky, lustrous or textured—in any size or shape—

DEAR ABBY

Potential 'Arsonist'!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: If you can help me, you're a genius. Mel is a wonderful husband but he smokes in bed. He's burned our blankets, sheets and even the floor. I've cut things out of the paper showing him where whole families were burned up by people smoking in bed, but he still does it. He'll get up to smoke and falls asleep smoking, so I wait till he's asleep and then I hide his cigarettes. He wakes up and begs for a cigarette, promising he won't fall asleep, but he always does. I worry about the lives of our children and other people in this building. Can you or any of your readers help?

MEL'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: It would appear that your "wonderful husband" is not only selfish but too weak to break a habit which is endangering the lives of others. Ask a doctor to recommend some methods of curing a tobacco slave. Do it before the ashes he leaves are his own.

DEAR ABBY

I heard that you wrote a book called "Dear Teen-Ager." Please send me the book and if it is any good I will send you a check.

DEAR B. S. S.: Please send me the check and if it is any good I will send you the book.

DEAR ABBY

Yesterday we were "prisoners" in our own home. Some people we know, terrible bores and free-loaders, called and asked if we planned to be home Sunday. I said we were going to be gone all day.

Come noon I saw them drive into our driveway, so I pulled down the shades and locked the doors. They kept driving past our house until 5 p.m. We didn't dare go out to enjoy our patio. My husband and I fought about this all day. He said they knew we were home because they could see our car in the garage and it was childish not to go out and invite them in.

I said I had nothing to serve and refused to get trapped into entertaining. Who was right? "PRISONER."

DEAR PRISONER

Your husband. You should have enjoyed your patio, allowed them to join you, and served nothing. And the next time they phoned, I'd have told them I was not entertaining, so please don't come.

BEAUTY HINTS

If you notice unattractive blotches and blemishes, step up your face washing program. Massage warm soap-suds into your skin several times a day.

To make your freshly washed hair more manageable for setting, try brushing it out with a clean brush just before it is completely dry.

Since skin blemishes thrive on oily skin, be sure to cleanse off all your make-up thoroughly before going to bed. Make-up contains oil and must be removed to permit the pores to "breathe."

It will be opened at 2:30 p.m., by Patrick R. Ellis, Archdeacon of Quatsino. Archdeacon Ellis was recently appointed superintendent of the Columbia Coast Mission.

Visitors Make Dream Come True

For 26 years Mr. and Mrs. Len Tyler of Acton in London, England worked hard building up their little business of a combined tobacconist and newsagent store. Finally, four years ago, they asked themselves, "Why are we working so hard?"

From that moment they began to dream of a long holiday that would take them around the world. They planned and still worked hard and at last, in September the dream came true.

Selling the now flourishing business they packed their bags and were off.

Arriving in New York aboard the Liberty, they visited Washington, Niagara Falls and Chicago before arriving in Victoria for a long-planned reunion with Mr. Tyler's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Smith of Haro Road.

The Smiths are almost as excited as their English visitors as they discuss an itinerary that will find the Tylers leaving here soon on next leg of their "dream" trip. En route to San Francisco, they will "take in" the Grand Canyon and Las Vegas.

Smilingly, Mr. Tyler quips, "I'm hoping to recoup all this holiday is costing me—at Las Vegas!"

From San Francisco, it's off to Australia with a quick look at Hawaii, Honolulu and Hong Kong before docking in Sydney. In Australia, their headquarters will be the home of friends in Adelaide who once ran a little store next to their own. Early January will see them back in England, via Suez with calls at all the Mediterranean ports they've come to know through books and travel folders.

As for the future, both the Tylers agree that this includes buying another business "at home."

Mr. Tyler explains, "It's in our blood!"

Will there be other "dream" trips to work and plan for? Who can tell?

Honeymoon in Europe, Live in Nova Scotia

Const. James Guthrie Stewart and Mrs. Stewart are presently on honeymoon in England, Scotland and continental Europe after which they will make their home in Truro, N.S. Bride, the former Carol Ann Moss, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Moss of Westville, N.S., while the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John High Stewart of Victoria.

Their wedding took place in St. Paul's United Church in Westville with Rev. J. D. MacDonald officiating. Church was decorated with large baskets of chrysanthemums.

Given in marriage by her father, bride wore a floor-length gown of white chantilly lace over net and satin. Her chapel-length veil of nylon tulle and lace filmed from a coronet of seed pearls and sequins. She carried red American Beauty roses.

Bride's attendants were Miss Elsie Mercer as maid of honor in a blue crystal gown and Mrs. David Latimer, Truro, N.S., and Mrs. William E. Jones, Montreal, as bridesmaids in yellow.

Groom, member of RCMP, wore traditional scarlet tunic dress uniform. His attendants included Const. Robert Taylor, Const. Robert Small, Const. William McGrath and Harold Moss as ushers. Const. Royce Creeve of New Glasgow was best man. As the bridal party left the church, members of the RCMP formed a guard of honor.

Reception followed in church hall, where Rev. J. D. MacDonald proposed the toast.

For travelling, Mrs. Stewart donned an azure blue walking suit and ensemble of suede shoes and bag, beaver hat and orchid corsage.

Group Founder Now Spry 76

OTTAWA (CP) — Presence of Grandma Edwards, turns meetings of the Canadian Dental Nurses' and Assistants' Association into a sort of family gathering.

A spry 76, Mrs. Marion Edwards, of Brooklin, Ont., who founded the organization in 1945 and became its first president, was busy at the 13th annual meeting here renewing old acquaintances and welcoming newcomers.

Grandma Edwards still has the spring in her step that kept her on the go for 40 years with the department of public health in Toronto, soothing upset children on their first encounter with the dentist.

Explaining why she promoted the association, she says it encourages the girls to feel they have a profession. "It shows the dentists we're interested."

TODAY'S RECIPE

CRAB NEWBURG IN PATTY SHELLS

Saute mushrooms in butter. Add flour, salt, pepper and milk. Cook until thickened. Add the crabmeat and wine. Heat altogether and serve in patty shells. Yield: 6 servings.

Model Robbie Loman walks to the altar a demure vision in an attractive full-length bridal gown...

... After the ceremony she lets her broderie anglaise skirt slip to reveal smart scooter pants.

Beatnik Bridal Gown Doubles for Honeymoon

After the bashful bride of grandma's day, and the blushing bride of yesterday, meet... the Beatnik Bride of today!

She walks to the altar a demure vision in full-length gown. And then, when it's going away time, she lets her skirt down (it's cool, missus, cool!) to reveal a natty pair of figure-fitting blue scooter pants.

Off comes the veil and head-dress, but the wedding dress blouse top and satin cummerbund stay put—and then the beatnik bride steps out to scooter off on honeymoon.

The beatnik bridal gown is an all-teenage idea; suggested by 16-year-old fashion fitter Carol Phillips, of Stoke Newington; designed by 19-year-old Lawrence Cutting, of Lewes, Sussex, and modelled by 18-year-old Robbie Loman of New Malden, Surrey.

They were backed by Louis Young, director of a big Soho, London, dress firm which hires out bridal gowns all over Britain. He says: I'm strictly a square, but I've got to know and understand my bride of the beat generation. I gave the youngsters their heads, and they've come up with something that's certainly 1960!"

For daily wear, teen-agers should preserve the youthful, dewy appearance of their skin and eyes. This means avoiding heavy make-up, particularly mascara. An oil-rich eye pomade can be used instead, followed with the use of an eyelash curler.

Be a Perfectionist About Clothes

It pays to be an absolute perfectionist about your clothes. It takes time, trouble and money, true, but the results are worth the effort.

Far too often you see women wearing clothes which really do not fit. The shoulders are sloppy, the waistline too long, the hem uneven or dragging. There's really no excuse for this.

Eye yourself critically when you shop. If a dress doesn't really fit, pass it up. Or, if it needs minor alterations, don't decide you'll just wear the dress once or twice before you have the alterations made. Have them made at once.

It's a rare thing, for instance, when a dress from the rack has a perfectly even hem. If you're good at sewing, you can handle this matter yourself. If not, have a tailor or seamstress do it.

If you wear a size 12, don't be beguiled into buying a 14 just because it's a bargain. Your bargain may cost you dearly in alterations before you're finished. Buy a 12 that really fits and feel both pretty and comfortable.

Teen-agers who are chubby at fifteen shouldn't be complacent. There's no guarantee that at the ripe old age of eighteen, they'll be slim and shapely. For in most cases, that fat comes from eating, not heredity.

If, at this point, you protest that you eat really very little, check on your habits. You may be shocked to find you're tucking away some tasty between-meal snacks of hamburgers and malted milks (that you salt away handy bars for nibbling between classes and that you eat a dinner that would make a truck driver reel).

If these actually are your habits, now's the time to call a halt. You don't need all of this food, you know. You're carrying over eating habits from your childhood, when your mother urged you to clean your plate. Start now to cut down if you want to be slim in your late teens.

ELECTRONIC DEVICES CAN COME LATER

New Station First, Says Chief

By AB KENT

Victoria needs a new police station before it provides the force with costly, time-saving aids to police work and crime detection, Chief John Blackstock said today.

He was commenting on the use of certain up-to-date electronic equipment in use or under trial by other police departments.

For several years, the administrative and records branches of police work and magistrate's court have been hampered by lack of space, dingy, poorly-lighted rooms and a lack of orderly planning of the entire police station and annex.

"The jail is still good, will be for another 30 years in my opinion," the chief said.

But the rest of the operation needs new quarters, preferably close to the jail, "so we can keep an eye on everything."

ON CORMORANT

He feels Cormorant Street, to the rear of the jail on the former market and firehall site, would be an ideal location.

This area and the former Market Building square adjoining the police station annex on Fisgard was made this year into a city-owned parking lot.

But if he gets a new police building, among the new gadgets Chief Blackstock would like are vest-pocket radio sets for each member of the department working outside.

This would be a superior plan to one being tested in Edmonton, where police are issued eyeglasses with radios built into the frames.

Eyeglasses and beaf constables do not go together, the chief feels.

HE'LL KNOW

Until then, however, "a good sergeant knows pretty well just where to find his men at all times. They must be in certain places at given times," the chief said.

Another time and labor-saving machine—an example of automation—is the electronic sorter which singles out in seconds the desired record cards from stacks of hundreds. This device is used in Vancouver and by the RCMP in Ottawa where records number in the hundreds of thousands.

Unfortunately, the little pocket radio sells for something like $1,500, the automatic sorter for much more than that.

The prospect of such things coming to Victoria is far distant.

Rocket Hits Island

JAKARTA (Reuters) — A rocket-shaped object fell on the town of Ende on the island of Flores east of Java last Wednesday, the Indonesian news agency Antara reported Tuesday. The object was 27 feet long and 4 feet, 10 inches in diameter. It came from the direction of Timor, an island east of Flores that is part of Indonesia, part Portuguese.

WHIRLWIND visit to Victoria will be made Nov. 23 by Eric S. Morse, president of the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada. Mr. Morse is vice-chairman of the board of W. C. Pittfield & Co. Ltd., Montreal. He will meet members of the industry, university officials and press and radio representatives. On Nov. 7, W. S. Annett, educational chairman of the IDA will also visit Victoria.

NEW PENAL POLICY

More Visitors, Mail and Games For Prisoners

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Prisoners in Canadian penitentiaries are to receive extra recreational, visiting and mailing privileges in what Justice Minister Fulton describes as a "great new event in the history of our country."

Mr. Fulton announced the changes Tuesday night at the week-long conference of Canadian penitentiary wardens and said the move is a "new, progressive" penal policy. The justice department acted on recommendations from the wardens.

Visiting restrictions are all but eliminated. The conference recommended a complete lift but limited visiting facilities in medium- and maximum-security penitentiaries made it impossible.

In minimum-security institutions there no longer will be restrictions on frequency of visits. In medium- and maximum-security penitentiaries two monthly visitors will be allowed instead of one.

NO LIMIT ON LETTERS

There will be no limit on the number of letters sent or received by inmates of minimum-security prisons. Censorship will continue, however, to guard against contraband.

Medium- and maximum-security prisoners will be allowed to receive and send all the mail they can afford. Formerly, the federal government paid mailing charges for all the inmates' mail—four letters a month.

Recreation will be planned for the prisoners' evenings with two or three hours of sports, crafts and hobbies "to help them live a normal life," Mr. Fulton said.

He said the situation in which a prisoner stays in his cell from 7 p.m. to 5 a.m. leads to an "unnatural life" and "unnatural thought."

MORE SEGREGATION

Greater segregation of first offenders from habitual offenders and narcotics addicts, and a new system for selection of inmates for the experimental minimum-security establishments are planned.

T. George Street, chairman of the federal parole board, said the "sentence must fit the criminal."

A prisoner should be sentenced according to his personality and rehabilitation needs, not by the severity of his offence, he said.

Alan McLeod, commissioner of penitentiaries, welcomed the government's "positive approach."

Mr. Fulton announced the appointment of J. Walter Johnstone, 54, warden of Kingston penitentiaries since 1954, to a new post in the department of justice, director of staff training for Canada's penitentiary service.

Mr. Johnstone began his service with the justice department in British Columbia in 1934. He takes up his duties in Ottawa Dec. 1.

Air Fares Reduced

MONTREAL (CP)—The International Air Transport Association Tuesday announced substantial lower-class fare reductions by airlines on north and central Pacific routes.

Cross-Canada Dinner Talk By Pearson

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal party leader Lester B. Pearson will be guest speaker at 15 dinners being held simultaneously across Canada, Dec. 3, the Young Liberal Federation of Canada announced Tuesday.

The unusual feat will be accomplished by microwave transmission that will bring the Liberal leader's speech and image on television to the federation dinners in each province.

To fit in with the six time zones in which the dinners will be held, starting times will vary from 8:30 p.m. NST in St. John's, Nfld., to 4 p.m. PST in Vancouver.

Other cities on the hookup are Charlottetown, Halifax, Moncton, Quebec City, Sherbrooke, Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton, Toronto, Sudbury, Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Edmonton.

A-Test Ban Talks Take Step Forward

GENEVA (UPI) — The 23-month-old nuclear test ban talks took another step forward Monday when the United States, Russia and Britain formally adopted a second annex to a proposed treaty outlawing tests.

The annex concerns the privileges and immunities which would be accorded to staff of the control organization policing a test ban.

The final content of the annex and the suggested treaty language was presented by U.S. delegate Charles C. Stelle. He said its adoption was "a landmark of sorts."

Russia's Semyon K. Tsarapkin said the annex marked "rather big" progress.

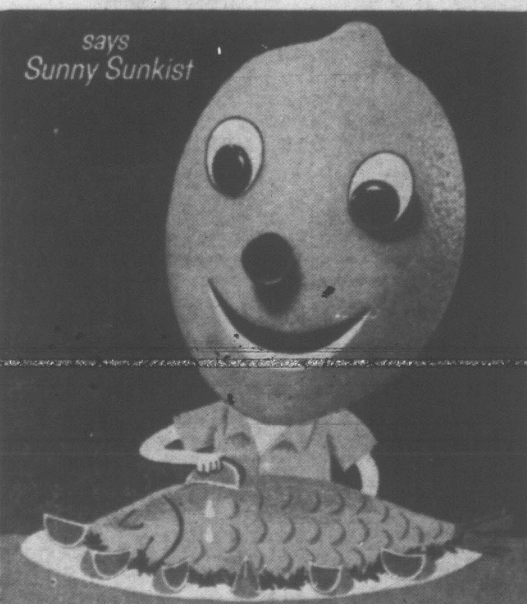

Britain's Sir Michael Wright put his arm around Tsarapkin's shoulder after the meeting and joked: "Three hundred international lawyers are out of a job. We have agreed on an annex."

The new annex gave the conference a score of two annexes and 17 articles from 225 hard-fought sessions.

Tough Traffic Laws

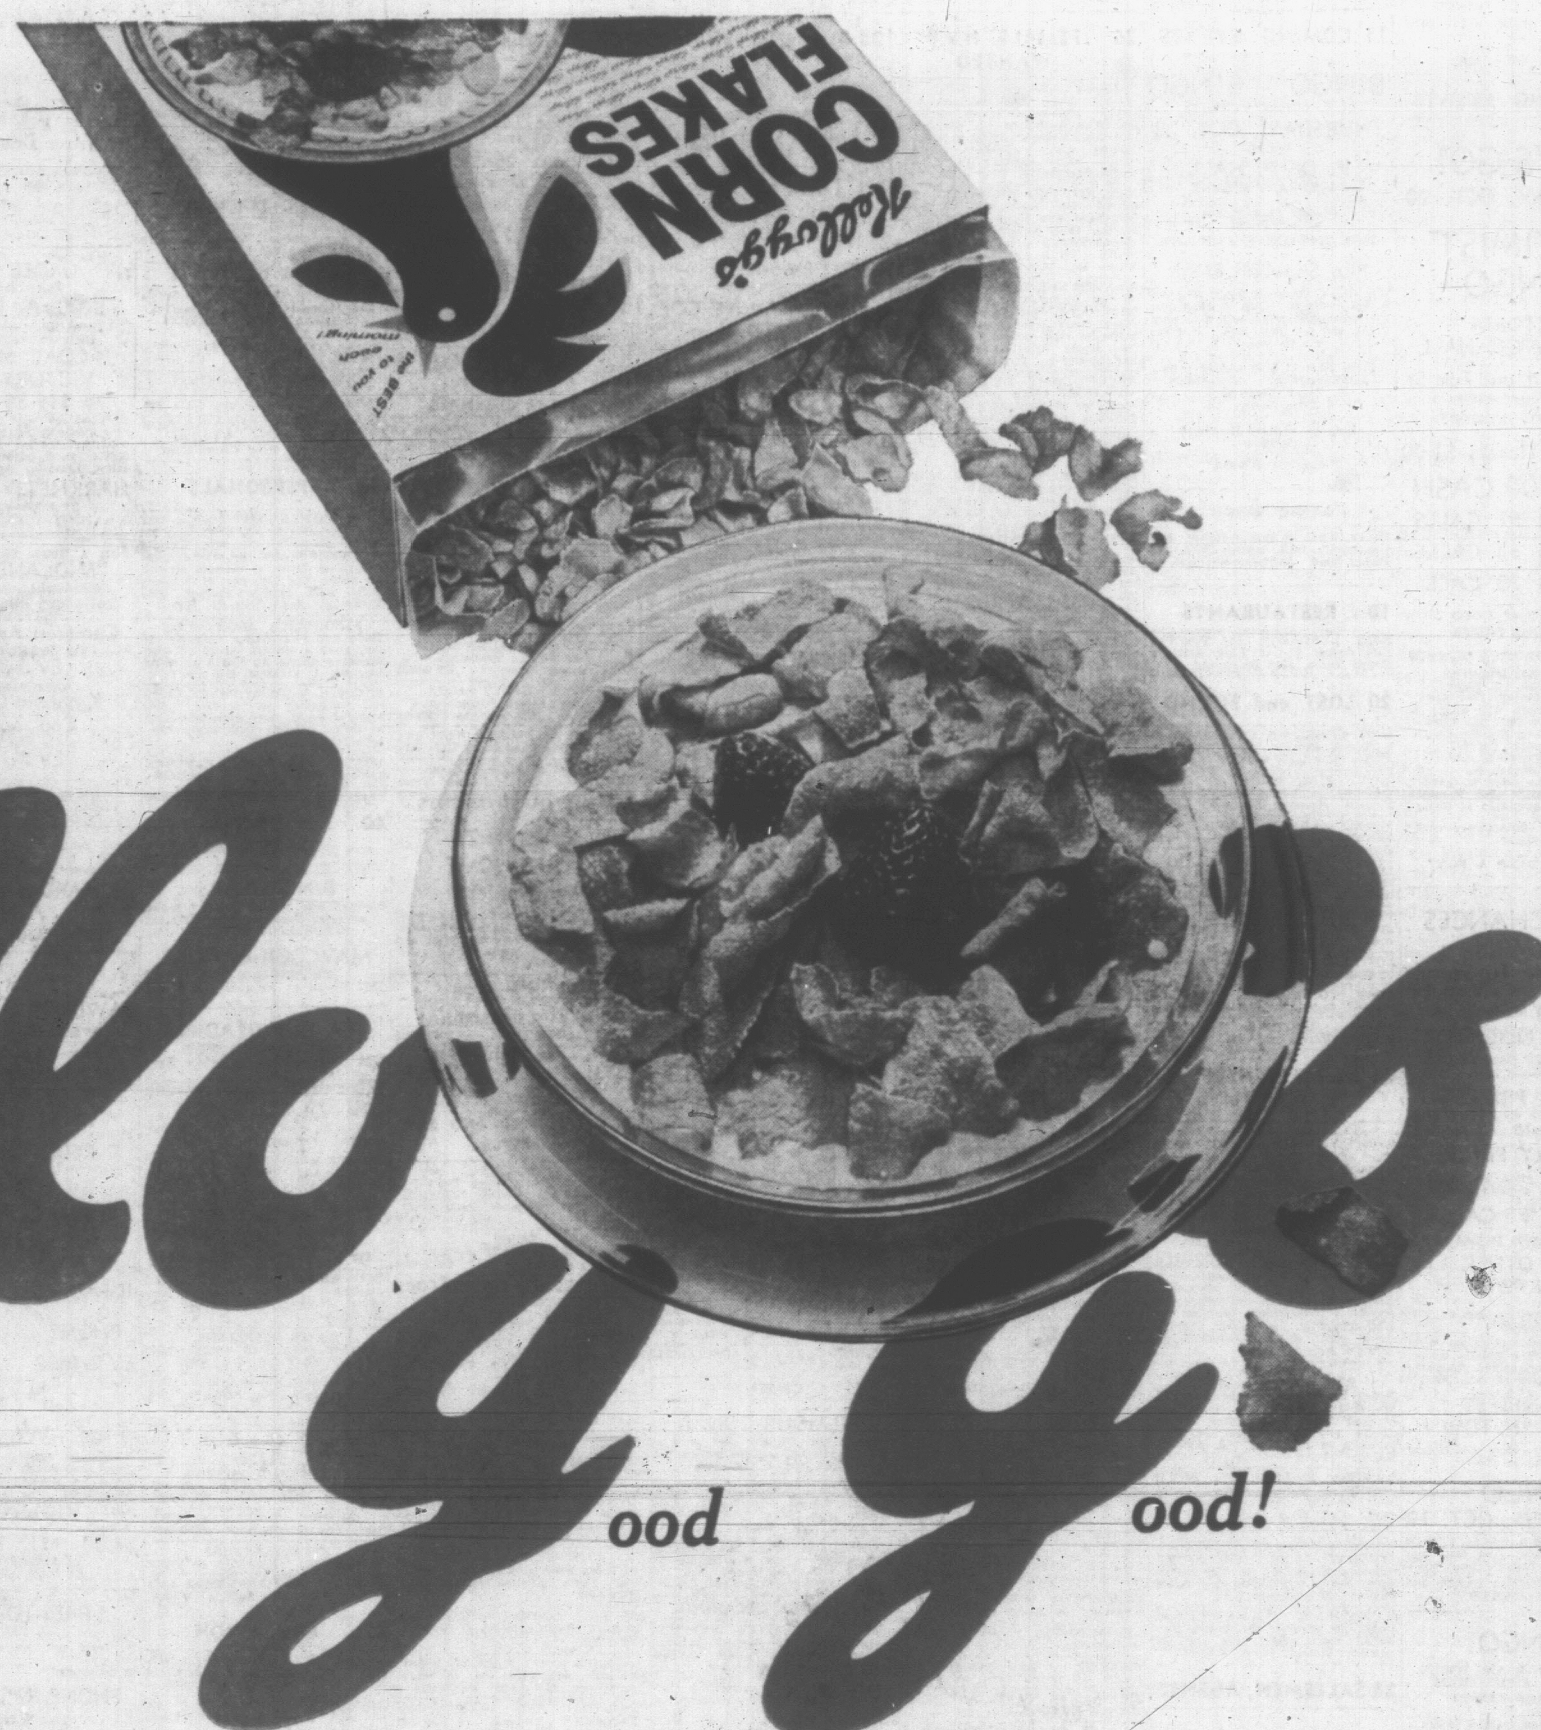

KARACHO, Pakistan (Reuters) — All future traffic offences will be tried here under a martial law regulation carrying a maximum of 10 years imprisonment for acts prejudicial to public order. A police announcement said the step became necessary because of the "utter disregard" of drivers for traffic rules.

dams. If B.C. continues to develop projects on the river, the Columbia Basin can meet B.C.'s power needs for another 21 or 22 years, according to Mr. Fulton.

Mr. Fulton conceded the question of the East Kootenay diversion dams had been "a serious bone of contention" between B.C. and Ottawa. To alleviate the effects of the construction of Libby, the Canadian team insisted on conditions.

No Downstream Benefits for Libby

Libby will provide storage for U.S. generating plants downstream on the Columbia, but it will not be given a first-added storage position. In layman's terms, the Canadian dams at Mica Creek, High Arrow and Duncan Lake will be given credit, in terms of downstream benefits, before Libby's benefits are apportioned.

Further, storage at Libby will greatly increase the output of Canadian power plants downstream on the Kootenay, which bends north into Canada before joining the Columbia, but the U.S. will not be paid downstream benefits for the Libby storage.

Another condition is Canada's insistence on the right to divert 1.5 million acre feet of water from the Kootenay to the Columbia at Canal Flats after 1980, when the water may be required for Canadian power generators.

Mica Creek dam is the big project embodied in the agreement. It will cost $247,193,000, plus another estimated $100,000,000 when B.C. decides to turn it into an at-site power producer. The dam site is a narrow rock canyon at the top of the Big Bend.

High Arrow to Force Out 1,600 People

Mica will affect the homes of but 12 people, and will flood out the notorious Big Bend Highway, which is even now being replaced by construction of Trans-Canada Highway through Rogers Pass.

High Arrow will cost $71,790,000. It will be built near Castlegar, of earth-fill construction, and is expected to be a purely storage project, although some power generation is possible. High Arrow has been fought bitterly by residents of the Arrow Lakes, over 1,600 of whom will be affected. Most will be moved out, although dykes could allow some to remain. These arrangements are a B.C. responsibility.

Duncan Lake is in a remote area, and will not affect people or communications. The dam there will cost $25,616,000.

Ottawa is going to maintain a restraining hand on the use of the downstream benefit power. If B.C. says it can't use the downstream benefit power available, and wants to sell it to the U.S. for cash, Ottawa's approval will be required. This, in Mr. Fulton's words, is to protect the interest of B.C. consumers.

der terms of the treaty draft, has five years to build dams at Arrow Lakes and Duncan Lake, nine to build one at Mica Creek.

A commission spokesman said he expected within three or four years all three projects will be going ahead.

First hearings may begin next month, but it will take about three months for the commission to complete its Arrow Lake application, said a spokesman.

The power commission has been designated in the treaty draft as B.C.'s builder.

ECONOMIC BOOST

Mr. Williston said the projects will mean "a very considerable boost in the provincial economy in the labor, materials and construction fields."

Three water licences must now be obtained by B.C. Hydro from the B.C. government—one for each of the projects—before the treaty can be consummated.

Mr. Williston said staking out will show residents of the areas involved just where the flooding will occur. There will be "on-the-spot" demonstrations.

Work has been going on for some weeks checking out ownership of land.

"We have a job to do in B.C. before the bulldozers begin to operate," he said.

8.5 MILLION

Mr. Williston said that for treaty purposes the Arrow and Duncan storage areas have been added up to 8.5 million acre feet. The Mica storage is set at seven million.

Actually Mica can store 11½ million acre feet, but it takes two years to fill the proposed reservoir. Also Canada wants to retain sufficient storage to operate her own generators at Mica.

The U.S. requires a total of 20 million feet. Canada originally bid for it all, while the U.S. wanted stringent downstream benefit payments.

To arrive at an agreement to supply 15.5 million was a great score for Canada, said Mr. Williston.

The Libby dam would provide 4.5 million acre feet of storage.

However, the U.S. must dethis year had been used by the Western powers to try "to railroad through the 10-nation committee their plans for control over armaments dangerous for the cause of peace and directed, in fact, at creating a system of international espionage."

Despite this, he said, the Soviet Union is ready to undertake another attempt to reach agreement on disarmament. He made it clear, however any such agreement would have to be on Soviet terms.

David Ormsby-Gore, British minister of state for foreign affairs, replying to Zorin's speech, said he wanted to make clear there was no sinister motives in the British proposal to have a committee of experts examine specific areas of disarmament to see if progress is possible.

He said the negotiations in London, which had been going on for some time, had provided a good example of how experts could make progress.

These include dams at Downie Creek, Revelstoke Canyon, Calamity Curve, and after 20 years, limited diversion of the Kootenay River into the Columbia.

Mr. Williston said there wouldn't be any need for action before 1980, until Mica is working at capacity.

He listed Downie and Revelstoke as the two most likely to go ahead first.

Mr. Williston said while B.C. Power Commission is working here on starting public hearings and applications for water licences, a team of B.C. and Ottawa technicians is in Portland, Ore., discussing fine details for the treaty with U.S. experts.

"I want to pay tribute to deputy lands minister E. W. Bassett and his technical team," said Mr. Williston. "They have done a good job in the negotiations, and the agreement is a good one for B.C."

CHEST GIFTS 'COERCED'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Labor Council (CLC) ordered an investigation Tuesday night into accusations that four companies are coercing employees into donating to the Community Chest.

Richard Greaves of the National Association of Marine Engineers said four companies with which his union has contracts have made it a condition of employment for their workers to donate to the Chest, currently conducting its annual campaign.

He declined to name the four companies. The Labor Council, at a regular meeting, criticized "intimidation and arbitrary methods" by the firms and ordered its welfare services committee to investigate.

Mr. Greaves said the management of one company ordered the bookkeeper to deduct $7.50 from the cheques of engineers and mates and $5 from seamen's cheques, to go to the chest. He said the men were not asked for permission.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes. The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia, and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Dennis Anfinson, age 13, of Pierson, Iowa, for his question:

What Makes Fruit Different Colors?

The lush colors of fruit are related to the gorgeous colors of the fall landscape. Both are caused by chemicals which the plants manufacture during the course of the summer. The process, of course, begins when the plant makes simple sugar. This is done by photosynthesis, the magic recipe by which a plant makes sugar, using sunlight to rearrange the molecules of carbon dioxide in the air and water in the soil.

Photosynthesis is carried on by green chlorophyll, which is a clear liquid teeming with tiny bodies called chloroplasts. All through the growing season, the plant needs plenty of chlorophyll to produce the sugar which will be processed into countless different plant chemicals. It is present in the leaves, often in the stems and always in the young growing fruit.

The plants, however, contain other chemicals of varying hues. But the plentiful green chlorophyll masks these colors. When the chlorophyll is no longer needed, its chemicals break up and disappear. Then the other chemicals show their colors. The fall trees are adorned with rainbow hues. The fall fruits glow with shiny purples, bluish with yellows, reds and golds.

The chemicals which cause these colors fall into two groups. The group called the carotenes range from yellow to red. You can remember them because they are named for the foxy orange-red of the carrot. Yes, the carotenes color many flowers and leaves, besides certain fruits. Actually, these plant chemicals are present in all green leaves all the time. During the green season, they are masked by chlorophyll.

Goldenrods, zinnias, primroses and sunflowers all get their red and yellow colors from the presence of carotene chemicals in their petals.

Carotenes also give colors to tomatoes, oranges, lemons and grapefruit. Certain seeds, such as peas, clover and golden corn are also colored with carotene chemicals.

Almost all young fruits contain both chlorophyll and carotene chemicals. Some also contain chemicals called anthocyanins which may mask the green and red-yellow chemicals of chlorophyll and carotene.

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — Hollywood stars are gloating about the blasts that David Susskind took for interviewing Mr. K. "He came out there and knocked us, now he's getting knocked," said one ecstatic producer... George Jessel, "an independent voter," a long-time Democrat, but a good friend of Richard Nixon ("who has been extremely kind to Israel") says he's neutral in this election, "but I think Nixon's going to lose"... Jack Benny's wife Mary Livingston got increasingly nervous about doing Jack's Oct. 16 TV show so Jack finally had her written out of the script.

PAN MAIL: "Dear Oil: How about writing about glamorous men for a change? You forget that one half of your readers are women—who couldn't be less interested in glamorous girls."

THE MIDNIGHT EARL...

Barbara Marciano showed off her 15-carat ring at the Harwyn, a birthday gift from Rocky. (Would Rocky fight again? Says Barbara: "Only with me".)

Sir Cedric Hardwicke's autobiography will be titled "A Victorian in Orbit"... Perle Mesta'll give a party after the Washington premiere of "Advice and Consent"... Russell Janney, who produced the original "Vagabond King" in '25, attended the Cotillion Room's "King" premiere... The Harlem crowd now call morphine addicts "tailors," because of the needles... Comedienne Carol Burnett's next album will be straight singing, no comedy.

Steve Lawrence and Eydie Gorme'll be "roasted" by the Friars... Louis Armstrong asked for a visa to visit Russia after his tour of Africa and Europe.

EARL'S PEARLS: One thing a buck can't buy these days is a dollar's worth of groceries. TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: There's a Broadwayite who has all his suits made to order. Of course, he has to wait for his wife's order.

NIXON GETS TOUGHER AGAINST CHINESE REDS

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (CP)—Vice-President Nixon said Tuesday that as president he would use the power of veto in the Security Council to block Communist China's entry into the United Nations, unless Red China first "purges itself of its offences against world law and the principles of civilized behavior."

Nixon's increasingly tough policy against Communist China may have been heightened by suggestions by Kennedy's adviser, Adlai Stevenson, that the U.S. trade admittance of Red China to the UN for a Communist guarantee of freedom for Formosa. Nixon maintains this would be a "worthless" guarantee.

U.S. Slaps Trade Ban Against Cuba

(Times News Services)

WASHINGTON—The United States today slapped Fidel Castro with a drastic trade embargo, banning sales to Cuba of most commodities except some foods and medicine.

'Invasion In Days Says Fidel

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Premier Fidel Castro has notified the General Assembly he expects a "large-scale invasion" to be mounted against Cuba from the United States "within the next few days." It was officially disclosed today.

The charge was contained in a memorandum explaining Castro's request that the General Assembly take up immediately on its agenda "a complaint by the revolutionary government of Cuba regarding the various plans of aggression and acts of intervention being executed by the United States."

The memorandum mentioned the U.S. trade embargo slapped on Cuba at noon today as one of the signs that the invasion was imminent. Another "proof," it said, was the state department's recommendation to U.S. dependents to leave the island.

Columbia R. Pact Agreed; $458 Million Outlay in B.C.

KEY POINTS IN HYDRO PLAN

Biggest Project In Canada Since Seaway

By TOM GOULD
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Canada and the United States today exchanged diplomatic notes approving the report of their Columbia River negotiating team as a basis for drafting a treaty.

At the same time, the government made public details of the negotiators' report, which contains a few surprises, but basically follows the foundation laid down earlier by the International Joint Commission.

It calls for Canada to provide 15.5 million acre feet of storage capacity through dams on the Canadian reaches of the Columbia, at Mica Creek, on the Big Bend, at the High Arrow damsite at the outlet of Lower Arrow Lake, and at Duncan Lake, at the head of Kootenay Lake.

The three dams will cost $344,599,000. All of the work will be paid for by B.C.

In return, the U.S. will deliver to the Canadian border at Oliver, B.C., one-half of the increase in power attributable to the Canadian storage. The amount is expected to be more than six billion kilowatt hours annually.

In addition, the U.S. will pay Canada for flood control benefits attributable to the Canadian dams, in a lump sum of an estimated $65,000,000.

Downstream Power Delivered at Oliver

To move the downstream benefit power from the border at Oliver, B.C., will have to construct a transmission line estimated to cost $113,823,000, making the total expenditure $458,422,000.

The whole project will be the biggest in Canada since the St. Lawrence Seaway.

For the first time, Ottawa made public its official offer to B.C. on financing. Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in announcing the Columbia plan that Ottawa is willing to raise half of the $344,599,000 cost of the three storage dams, to ease the burden on B.C.'s credit resources. Since the entire project will be self-liquidating, Ottawa expects to be repaid.

Mr. Diefenbaker said "preliminary and conservative estimates" place the cost of the downstream benefit power made available to Canada at less than four mills. This would make it about 2.5 mills cheaper than the domestic price of power in Vancouver today.

And he said the downstream benefit power would meet one-third of southern B.C.'s power needs up to 1972.

The projects involved in the international agreement are not the end of Columbia River development in Canada, only the beginning. The 15.5 million-acre-feet of storage contracted to the U.S. will not prejudice enormous at-site power generation.

According to Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton, who headed the Canadian negotiating team, total power production on this side of the border could eventually total 20.2 billion kilowatt hours annually, with the construction of a network of power dams and installation of at-site power at Mica Creek.

B.C. Veto Blocked Full Development

B.C.'s outright refusal to allow construction of a series of diversion dams on the Kootenay River, known as the Dorr-Bull River-Luxor plan, blocked full development of the Columbia Basin.

And it led directly to one of the less-favorable aspects of the progress report. That is, the U.S. was given a five-year period in which to decide whether it will build the controversial Libby Dam, at Libby, Montana.

The Dorr-Bull River-Luxor complex would have accomplished two things. First, it would have diverted the flood waters of the Kootenay into the Columbia, where they could be utilized for power production along the entire Canadian stretch of the river. Second, it would have satisfied the urgent U.S. need for flood protection at Bonners Ferry.

Since B.C. refused to consider building the diversion dams, on grounds they would flood out the last large unused block of agricultural land in the province, the U.S. had to be granted the right to construct Libby.

The five-year option arrangement is a clear indication of some U.S. reluctance to Libby, which is, at best, an uneconomic project. Within that period too, there could be a change of government, or a change of heart, in Victoria.

60-Year Treaty Term Recommended

Mr. Diefenbaker said the period of 60 years has been recommended by the negotiators as the term of the treaty.

Mr. Fulton said there is still "a lot of strenuous work ahead" in drafting a treaty, but that the worst is over. He paid tribute to Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, head of the Canadian section of the I.J.C., for laying the foundation of the agreement.

Three steps remain to be taken before a start on construction, which Mr. Fulton said is likely to begin in 1961. Water licences must be issued by the B.C. Water Comptroller, following public hearings, the treaty must be drafted and approved by congress and parliament, and financial arrangements have to be settled between B.C. and Ottawa.

Terms of the negotiators' report make it clear there will be no U.S. interference or interest in the actual construction of the three dams involved. The work will all be done by Canadians.

A deadline of 1970 has been set for completion of the three dams.

RAY WILLISTON
... "a fine deal"

B.C. Hydro Plans Quick Start

B.C. Power Commission is going ahead immediately on first steps toward development of three Columbia River dams, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said today.

He called the draft treaty principles approved by Ottawa and Washington "a very fine deal so far as B.C. is concerned."

The agreement gives Canada a 60-year contract to provide the U.S. with three-quarters of the water storage it needs for hydro power.

It ties B.C. Power Commission to only three projects, giving it the option later to build for B.C. use a number of other dams on the Columbia.

FIVE YEARS

It gives the U.S. only five years to decide on building its dam at Libby, Montana, which would involve some backing up of water in B.C.

By securing such a large proportion of storage needed by the U.S., Canada has made the Libby project pretty uneconomical from a cost-benefit basis.

START SOON

Mr. Williston said negotiations will have to begin "relatively soon" between B.C. and Ottawa on financing the B.C. Hydro projects, to cost a total of $450 million.

"There never has been a formalized offer," he said. But Ottawa has made it known she would make a loan to B.C.

Mr. Williston said B.C. wants it known that she feels entitled to the same deal Saskatchewan got for the South Saskatchewan dam—substantial federal grants toward construction.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—James Hagerty, White House press secretary, said today President Eisenhower plans to send a proposed Columbia River treaty to Congress in January shortly before he leaves office.

In a statement in the course of a cross-country tour, Eisenhower said the basic agreement reached by U.S. Canadian negotiators "provides a basis for proof that two neighboring nations sharing a common resource can sit down together and plan a mutually advantageous development."

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada today called for a new attack on disarmament on a scientific basis with renewed emphasis on help from the United Nations and middle and smaller powers.

External Affairs Minister Howard Green, in a major address to the UN assembly's 99-member political committee, pleaded for a return to East-West negotiations on the basis established by the 10-nation East-West committee whose work in Geneva collapsed last June in a communist walkout.

ROLES DIVIDED

Urging the formation of technical and advisory committees, to work with the main negotiating body, which now is dormant, Green declared:

"My main suggestion is that the main military powers have one role to play, in disarmament, and the middle and smaller powers another, no less vital and important."

"The 10-nation committee provides a workable forum for negotiations between the rival great power groupings. Any new negotiating body should preserve that two-sides concept."

"However, this two-sides approach to disarmament has been made at the expense of close ties with the United Nations."

Boycott Threat By Reds on Arms

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The Soviet Union today threatened to boycott the United Nations disarmament debate if the United States and Western powers were using the arms talks as a screen to cover up their efforts to maintain a national espionage system.

Zorin urged the political committee to get down to business at once on the task of working out an international disarmament treaty along the lines of a draft submitted last month by Soviet Premier Khrushchev. This approach already has been rejected by the West.

He charged that the East-West talks in Geneva earlier this year had been a waste of time.

Opening the disarmament debate in the General Assembly's political committee, Zorin rejected the Western proposals as a danger to peace. He accused the West of pursuing a policy of procrastination and of further aggravating international peace.

The Soviet delegate blamed the West for the disarmament deadlock, charging that the Western powers were using the arms talks as a screen to cover up their efforts to maintain a national espionage system.

Wild West Style Bandits Shoot Up, Rob CNR Train

KINGSEY, Que. (CP)—Six masked bandits today held up a Canadian National Railways train in wild-west fashion, fired shots, at the diesel locomotive and escaped with 15 sealed bags from the baggage car.

The bags were reported to have contained money destined for banks in Quebec City.

No passengers were molested but engineer W. Arnold of Richmond, Que., was slightly cut when the glass in his cab was shattered by a bullet.

A CNR spokesman said the company had been told the bags contained about $3,000 in small currency.

Station agent Paul Guimont, 40, his wife and five-year-old son were kept under guard in their living quarters in the station by two of the hold-up men.

After the holdup the men tossed the bags into a panel truck and drove off.

Man Burned Out Week After Arrival

A week after moving into a one-room apartment on May Street, 84-year-old Mortimer W. Hames was driven out by fire which caused over $1,000 damage in the two-storey building at 4.30 p.m. Tuesday.

He was alone in the house when flames from a burning shed next door crept up an outer wall and into the windows and woodwork, destroying most of the ground-floor furnishings.

Gave Alarm

Mr. Hames, who came here from Vancouver last week, went outside to give the alarm, then tried to go back to his second-floor rear room to gather up his belongings, but was stopped by a passerby.

Percy South, 241 Beechwood, said he had just dropped off a passenger as he drove home from work, saw the fire and with three other men ran into the house to check for occupants.

He stopped the elderly pensioner as he mounted the stairs. The top was blocked by flames.

The fire started from undetermined cause in the wooden lean-to at the rear of 1321 May, an old, frame house which had been unoccupied for more than a year.

Fire Chief James Bayliss said it had been locked up, but that children could get into the shed without difficulty.

Damage to the empty house was heavy and probably beyond repair.

Caretakers of the rooming house, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Meagher, who were looking after the building for owner Mrs. Gladys Mason, Vancouver, were away from home during the fire.

Mr. Meagher is a patient at Royal Jubilee Hospital and his wife was visiting him Tuesday, neighbors said.

They carried no insurance on their property in the lower floor.

Two other roomers, George Simmons, 80, and Joseph Toth, were absent at the time.

"I was in my room about 4 p.m. when I saw smoke coming in my window," Mr. Hames related.

Shut Window

"I shut the window in a hurry and went downstairs to see if anyone knew the fire department telephone number, being a stranger here."

He was taken to a rest home for the night.

Across the street, Carro Baird, 14, of 1310 May, said she looked out about 4.30 and saw smoke coming out of the shed and called to her mother.

Firemen arrived with major equipment because of the fire's location, a neighborhood of older, multi-storey homes with a new three-storey apartment building across the street.

The unoccupied house and shed were property of Moss Street storekeeper Sam Kee.

Big Quadra Job Starts in 1961

Paving, Walks, Lights

Saanich will go ahead with its full reconstruction program for Quadra Street next year as the result of a provincial government decision Tuesday to pay for half the cost of paving, Councillor Stanley Murphy, chairman of council's lands and planning committee, said today.

Council this year feared it would be forced to curtail its road program for Quadra because of lack of funds, he said, but the government move will permit it to go ahead.

"It will permit us to pave, and to install sidewalks and street lighting all along Quadra," he said.

Quadra, previously unclassified and therefore officially ineligible for aid, was reclassified by the cabinet as a secondary highway from Tolmie Avenue at the city boundary to the Patricia Bay Highway.

The cabinet also agreed to pay half the cost for the reconstruction of the 2.2-mile section.

WIDENED

This year Saanich spent $70,000 in widening and improving Quadra from Tolmie to Cloverdale. It had hoped to extend the project to Reynolds with government assistance, but was forced to drop its plan because of a money shortage.

Coun. Murphy said Saanich next year will complete the section of Quadra between Cloverdale and Reynolds, including the installation of lights and sidewalks.

The remaining portion of Quadra to Patricia Bay, he said, would probably be completed in 1962.

CUT CONGESTION

"Quadra is one of the most important inter-municipal routes," he said. "When it is completely reconstructed it will do much to alleviate traffic congestion on the Patricia Bay Highway."

The cabinet at the same time reclassified a section of Gorge Road from Harriet to Admirals, a distance of 1.7 miles, as a secondary highway.

LOSE OUT

It was formerly classified as an arterial highway. This means a loss in government aid if it is improved by Saanich.

Gorge as an arterial highway was formerly eligible for 100 per cent aid on construction and maintenance costs. Now, as a secondary, it's eligible for 50 per cent construction or reconstruction, 40 per cent maintenance.

7 Awards For V.I. Students

Seven scholarships out of 89 awarded to University of B.C. students today were taken by Victoria area residents.

Winning two of them — a $200 Pacific Meat Company bursary and a $50 Ketchum Manufacturing Company bursary — was William David Durand, 3721 Saanich Road.

Other winners included: Andrea Mary Miller, 567 Prince Robert Drive, and Richard W. Sparks, 2355 Musgrave Street, $100 bursaries each from The Ladies' Pharmaceutical Auxiliary (Victoria); Peter R. Cheeke, Cobble Hill, a $200 W. Jack H. Dicks bursary; John W. Howe, 1004 Cook Street, a $200 UBC Branch No. 72 of the Canadian Legion scholarship; and Mrs. E. A. McGowan, 1100 Victoria Home Economics and Dietetics Association bursary.

Pilot's Widow Gets Veterans' Scholarship

Two outstanding Victoria College students will receive $100 Army, Navy, and Air Force Veterans' Association scholarships at the quarterly meeting of the association Thursday night.

They are Mrs. Peta-Ann Jackson, mother of three children and widow of water bomber pilot Victor Jackson, killed when his plane crashed near Kelowna July 22, and Anthony George Wilden, who qualified for college by taking grade 13 through private study.

Recipients had to be the sons or daughters of war veterans to qualify. Mr. Wildren's father lives in England, and Mrs. Jackson is the daughter of Group Capt. and Mrs. E. A. McGowan of Victoria.

GOING BACK TO RUSSIA

Reds Won't Worry Elderly City Pair

After 46 years in the New World, two Russian immigrants leave Victoria this weekend on the start of a 7,000-mile journey back to their homeland.

Communists don't bother them — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Moskaluk, 731 Market, have only one aim, they want to see their family again.

DAUGHTER STAYING

One daughter, Mrs. Sonja Pawlyshyn, is in Victoria but back in their home town of Tomachow, in the Ukraine, they have another daughter, three grandchildren, five great-grandchildren and one great-great-grandchild.

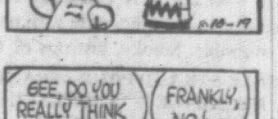

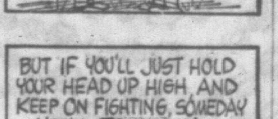

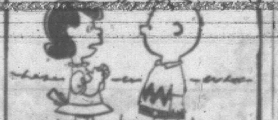

Until 1949, Mr. Moskaluk farmed in Saskatchewan and as he put it "worked very, very hard and suffered many setbacks through crop failures."

He and his wife took out naturalization papers in 1933. They moved to Victoria on retirement.

They will travel to Russia — with one-way tickets — on the Polish liner Batory.

Education Report Completed

Education Minister Leslie Peterson said today the B.C. cabinet will decide when the Chant Royal Commission report is made public.

Dean S. N. F. Chant of the University of B.C. said Tuesday his report on education will be given to the government next week.

Mr. Peterson said he had received no notice so far.

Mr. Chant said his 800-page report contained "many recommendations."

"Some could go into effect at the opening of the 1961 school year, others would take much longer to implement."

Mr. Peterson said he has no idea what's in the report, nor what action the government will take.

"I can't say how soon it will be released," he said.

The report goes first to Provincial Secretary Wesley Black, and from there to the cabinet.

MONTE ROBERTS

The folks around these parts who are forever workin' for the tourist dollar have come up with another slogan, namely "The Mediterranean Area of Canada."

Let me say at once, I am not against this new slogan. I am not such a one as says "Swallow the Birds" is a better tourist device than Capt. Discardant, or that mercury lights won't out-lustre the cluster.

I am all for a change. But what worries me is, what are the Mediterranean countries going to say when they hear about our slogan "The Mediterranean Area of Canada?"

Will they pass it off with a Latin shrug, or will their semi-tropical blood come to a boil? Will they act through the United Nations, or will they take retaliatory measures on a unilateral basis?

I rather fear the latter course will be followed, with tourist bureaus on both shores of the Roman Sea coining slogans to hurl back at Victoria.

Such as: Follow the birds to the Riviera. The Casbah—the Fan Tan alley of Algiers. The Matterhorn—Switzerland's answer to Mount Douglas.

Venice—the Sooko Pot Holes of Italy. The Colosseum—Rome's own Athletic Park. Monte Carlo—the Kinsmen's giant Bingo of Southern France.

Gibraltar—firm as Ripple Rock.

Let us pause for thought before we become the Madison Avenue of the Pacific Northwest.

Mayor Hopeful On Boys' Club

Old Firehall Lease Discussed As Aldermen Warm Up to Plan

Mayor Percy Scurren today said he was hopeful that a Victoria branch of the Boys' Clubs of Canada will be established in the old No. 2 firehall at Camosun and Yates.

He expressed optimism after a 45-minute meeting between council members and representatives of the organization.

The club, which aims at helping underprivileged boys who would not normally join youth organizations, applied for a three-year lease on the vacant firehall at $1 a year.

WORRIED

Some aldermen were known to be worried that other youth organizations would consider such a lease as a precedent and, in their turn, request virtually free accommodation from the city.

Today's private meeting with the club's representatives was held "to try to iron out some of the difficulties," said the mayor.

"But I'm hoping that we will be able to establish a boys' club in Victoria at the firehall."

QUALIFIED

"This organization has experienced and qualified directors and experience has shown that that can make these clubs successful in helping with the juvenile delinquency problem."

A decision on the club's request is expected at the next council meeting.

TRAFFIC FINES

In-Saanich police court Tuesday:

Don Keith Hamber, 1695 Howroyd, $40 and restricted to business driving for two months, for careless driving.

BEER NOT MINT

Blue Bill Not What She Hoped

Mrs. Joyce Mee, 303 Government, was excited when she discovered she had a blue $1 Canadian bill—but it was probably beer and not the Mint that made it that way.

The bill is a normal green on its front side where the monarch is portrayed. But the prairie scene on the back is a pale blue, with three small greenish spots.

"I first noticed it when someone was going to give me change for a $5 bill about a week ago. Since then two people have refused to take it," she said.

She decided to hang onto it in case it proved valuable.

One coin collector said he had heard of the bills changing color after being washed with an ingredient containing ammonia.

But another said two or three of the two-colored $1 bills had been found here in the past and finally one was sent to the Mint.

GAGLARDI FINED $1,000 FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT

$458 Million Outlay in B.C. On Columbia

By TOM GOULD
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Canada and the United States today exchanged diplomatic notes approving the report of their Columbia River negotiating teams as a basis for drafting a treaty.

At the same time, the government made public details of the negotiators' report, which contains a few surprises, but basically follows the foundation laid down earlier by the International Joint Commission.

It calls for Canada to provide 15.5 million acre feet of storage capacity through dams on the Canadian reaches of the Columbia, at Mica Creek, on the Big Bend, at the High Arrow damsite at the outlet of Lower Arrow Lake, and at Duncan Lake, at the head of Kootenay Lake.

The three dams will cost $344,599,000. All of the work will be paid for by B.C.

In return, the U.S. will deliver to the Canadian border at Oliver, B.C., one-half of the increase in power attributable to the Canadian storage. The amount is expected to be more than six billion kilowatt hours annually.

In addition, the U.S. will pay Canada for flood control benefits attributable to the Canadian dams, in a lump sum of an estimated $65,000,000.

$113 Million Transmission Line

To move the downstream benefit power from the border at Oliver, B.C., will have to construct a transmission line estimated to cost $113,323,000, making the total expenditure $458,422,000.

The whole project will be the biggest in Canada since the St. Lawrence Seaway.

For the first time, Ottawa made public its official offer to B.C. on financing. Prime Minister Diefenbaker said in announcing the Columbia plan that Ottawa is willing to raise half of the $344,599,000 cost of the three storage dams, to ease the burden on B.C.'s credit resources. Since the entire project will be self-liquidating, Ottawa expects to be repaid.

Mr. Diefenbaker said "preliminary and conservative estimates" place the cost of the downstream benefit power made available to Canada at less than four mills. This would make it about 2.5 mills cheaper than the domestic price of power in Vancouver today.

And he said the downstream benefit power would meet one-third of southern B.C.'s power needs up to 1972.

The projects involved in the international agreement are not the end of Columbia River development in Canada, only the beginning. The 15.5 million acre feet of storage contracted to the U.S. will not prejudice enormous at-site power generation.

According to Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton, who headed the Canadian negotiating team, total power production on this side of the border could eventually total 20.2 billion kilowatt hours annually, with the construction of a network of power dams and installation of at-site power at Mica Creek.

B.C. Veto Blocked Full Development

B.C.'s outright refusal to allow construction of a series of diversion dams on the Kootenay River, known as the Dorr-Bull River-Luxor plan, blocked full development of the river.

And it led directly to one of the less favorable aspects of the progress report. That is, the U.S. was given a five-year period in which to decide whether it will build the controversial Libby Dam, at Libby, Montana.

The Dorr-Bull River-Luxor complex would have accomplished two things. First, it would have diverted the flood waters of the Kootenay into the Columbia, where they could be utilized for power production along the entire Canadian stretch of the river. Second, it would have satisfied the urgent U.S. need for flood protection at Bonners Ferry.

Since B.C. refused to consider building the diversion dams, on grounds they would flood out the last large unused block of agricultural land in the province, the U.S. had to be granted the right to construct Libby.

The five-year option arrangement is a clear indication of some U.S. reluctance to Libby, which is, at best, an uneconomic project. Within that period too, there could be a change of government, or a change of heart, in Victoria.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the period of 60 years has been recommended by the negotiators as the term of the treaty. Mr. Fulton said there is still "a lot of strenuous work ahead" in drafting a treaty, but that the worst is over. He paid tribute to Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, head of the Canadian section of the I.J.C., for laying the foundation of the agreement.

Three steps remain to be taken before a start on construction.

B.C. Hydro Plans Quick Start

B.C. Power Commission is going ahead immediately on first steps toward development of three Columbia River dams, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said today.

He called the draft treaty principles approved by Ottawa and Washington "a very fine deal so far as B.C. is concerned."

The agreement gives Canada a 60-year contract to provide the U.S. with three-quarters of the water storage it needs for hydro power.

It ties B.C. Power Commission to only three projects, giving it the option later to build for B.C. use a number of other dams on the Columbia.

FIVE YEARS

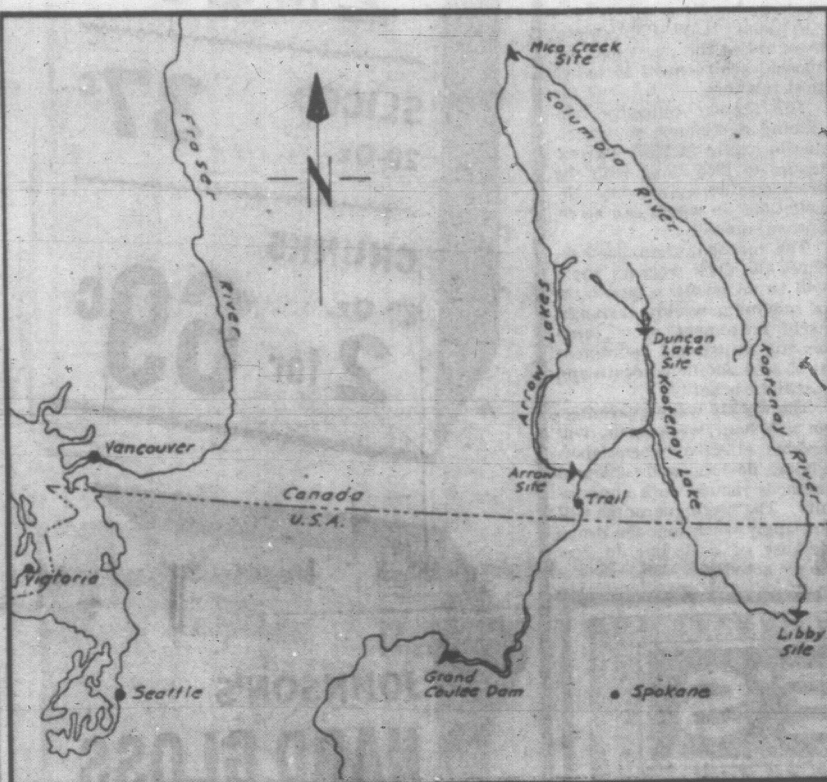

It gives the U.S. only five years to decide on building its dam at Libby, Montana, which would involve some backing up of water in B.C.

By securing such a large proportion of storage needed by the U.S., Canada has made the Libby project pretty uneconomical from a cost-benefit basis.

Mr. Williston said negotiations will have to begin "relatively soon" between B.C. and Ottawa on financing the B.C. Hydro projects, to cost a total of $458 million.

"There never has been a

Gov't Minister In Contract Case

VANCOUVER (CP)—Highways Minister Philip Gaglardi was fined $1,000 and costs today and Seattle contractor C. W. Thornton was sentenced to prison for contempt of court.

Mr. Justice T. W. Norris passed the sentences on charges brought by Burton Glazier of Seattle in January in connection with a Highways Department payment to a contracting firm.

Mr. Justice Norris sentenced Thornton to remain in jail until he "purges himself of the contempt"—pays Glazier $25,216 that the justice said is owed by Thornton.

He accused Thornton of "wilful contempt" of an injunction granted Oct. 29, 1959, by Mr. Justice Norris. Mr. Gaglardi was accused of aiding and abetting Thornton.

Thornton was treasurer and vice-president of Union Contractors Limited which had a contract for a highway project near Revelstoke, B.C., 300 miles northeast of here. Mr. Glazier, a creditor of Union Contractors, was granted an order which restrained Mr. Thornton from receiving and dealing with money payable by the provincial highways department.

He brought contempt of court charges after a cheque was issued by the highways department and sent to a bank at Bonners Ferry, Idaho, where it was used in payment of Union Contractors' indebtedness to the bank.

Defence counsel said the sentences and fine will be appealed.

U.S. Slaps Trade Ban Against Cuba

(Times News Services)

WASHINGTON—The United States today slapped Fidel Castro with a drastic trade embargo, banning sales to Cuba of most commodities except some foods and medicine.

Aimed at the economic foundation of the Castro regime, the move was accompanied by a crackdown on sale transfers for Cuba. This was an apparent attempt to keep Cuba from using American shipping to obtain banned products from other countries.

The commerce department said the embargo would not affect shipments of goods manufactured in American-owned plants in Canada or elsewhere. It applies only in the U.S. regardless of the ownership of the American plants involved.

"PUSHED AROUND"

Secretary of Commerce Frederick H. Mueller, using tough language, indicated other steps may be in the making. He was asked during a television interview if the embargo would push Cuba toward greater trade with the Russian bloc.

"If it pushes them into trade with the Communist bloc that's just too bad," he replied. "After all, we've been the ones that have been struction, which Mr. Fulton said is likely to begin in 1961. Water licences must be issued by the B.C. Water Comptroller, following public hearings, the treaty must be drafted and approved by congress and parliament, and financial arrangements have to be settled between B.C. and Ottawa.

Terms of the negotiators' report make it clear there will be no U.S. interference or interest in the actual construction of the three dams involved. The work will all be done by Canadians.

[A deadline of 1970 has been set for completion of the three dams. If B.C. continues to develop projects on the river, the Columbia Basin can meet B.C.'s power needs for another 21 or 22 years, according to Mr. Fulton.]

Mr. Fulton conceded the question of the East Kootenay diversion dams had been "a serious bone of contention" between B.C. and Ottawa. To alleviate the effects of the construction of Libby, the Canadian team insisted on conditions.

No Downstream Benefits for Libby

Libby will provide storage for U.S. generating plants downstream on the Columbia, but it will not be given a first-aided storage position. In layman's terms, the Canadian dams at Mica Creek, High Arrow and Duncan Lake will be given credit, in terms of downstream benefits, before Libby's benefits are apportioned.

Further, storage at Libby will greatly increase the output of Canadian power plants downstream on the Kootenay, which bends north into Canada before joining the Columbia, but the U.S. will not be paid downstream benefits for the Libby storage.

Another condition is Canada's insistence on the right to divert 1.5 million acre feet of water from the Kootenay to the Columbia at Canal Flats after 1980, when the water may be required for Canadian power generators.

Mica Creek dam is the big project embodied in the agreement. It will cost $247,193,000, plus another estimated $100,000,000 when B.C. decides to turn it into an at-site power producer. The dam site is a narrow rock canyon at the top of the Big Bend.

High Arrow to Force Out 1,600 People

Mica will affect the homes of but 12 people, and will flood out the notorious Big Bend Highway, which is even now being replaced by construction of Trans-Canada Highway through Rogers Pass.

High Arrow will cost $71,790,000. It will be built near Castlegar, of earth-fill construction, and is expected to be a purely storage project, although some power generation is possible. High Arrow has been fought bitterly by residents of the Arrow Lakes, over 1,600 of whom will be affected. Most will be moved out, although dykes could allow some to remain. These arrangements are a B.C. responsibility.

Duncan Lake is in a remote area, and will not affect people or communications. The dam there will cost $25,616,000.

Ottawa is going to maintain a restraining hand on the use of the downstream benefit power. If B.C. says it can't use the downstream benefit power available, and wants to sell it to the U.S. for cash, Ottawa's approval will be required. This, in Mr. Fulton's words, is to protect the interest of B.C. consumers.

B.C. HYDRO

formalized offer," he said.

But Ottawa has made it known she would make a loan to B.C.

Mr. Williston said B.C. wants it known that she feels entitled to the same deal Saskatchewan got for the South Saskatchewan dam—substantial federal grants toward construction.

B.C. Power Commission, under terms of the treaty draft, has five years to build dams at Arrow Lakes and Duncan Lake, nine to build one at Mica Creek.

A commission spokesman said he expected within three or four years all three projects will be going ahead.

First hearings may begin next month, but it will take about three months for the commission to complete its Arrow Lake application, said a spokesman.

The power commission has been designated in the treaty draft as B.C.'s builder.

ECONOMIC BOOST

Mr. Williston said the projects will mean "a very considerable boost in the provincial economy in the labor, materials and construction fields."

Three water licences must now be obtained by B.C. Hydro from the B.C. government—one for each of the projects—before the treaty can be consummated.

Mr. Williston said staking out will show residents of the areas involved just where the flooding will occur. There will be "on-the-spot" demonstrations.

Work has been going on for some weeks checking out ownership of land.

"We have a job to do in B.C. before the bulldozers begin to operate," he said.

8.5 MILLION

Mr. Williston said that for treaty purposes the Arrow and Duncan storage areas have been added up to 8.5 million acre feet. The Mica storage is set at seven million.

Actually Mica can store 11 1/2 million acre feet, but it takes two years to fill the proposed reservoir. Also Canada wants to retain sufficient storage to operate her own generators at Mica.

The U.S. requires a total of 20 million feet. Canada originally bid for it all, while the U.S. wanted stringent downstream benefit payments.

To arrive at an agreement to supply 15.5 million was a great score for Canada, said Mr. Williston.

The Libby dam would provide 4.5 million acre feet of storage.

However, the U.S. must decide on this project within five years.

Canada in the draft treaty agrees to pay "flowage costs": that is, cost of land and clearing. However, in return, she will receive substantial flood control on the Creston Flats, additional irrigation waters, and increased power benefits for any plants on the Kootenay.

Limiting the agreement to three projects leaves the way clear for the power commission to build "several other valuable projects" in the future, said Mr. Williston.

These include dams at Downie Creek, Revelstoke Canyon, Calamity Curve, and after 20 years, limited diversion of the Kootenay River into the Columbia.

Mr. Williston said there wouldn't be any need for approval before 1980, until Mica is working at capacity.

He listed Downie and Revelstoke as the two most likely to go ahead first.

Mr. Williston said while B.C. Power Commission is working here on starting public hearings and applications for water licences, a team of B.C. and Ottawa technicians is in Portland, Ore., discussing fine details for the treaty with U.S. experts.

"I want to pay tribute to deputy lands minister E. W. Bassett and his technical team," said Mr. Williston. "They have done a good job in the negotiations, and the agreement is a good one for B.C."

KINGSEY, Que. (CP)—Six masked bandits today held up a Canadian National Railways train in wild-west fashion, fired shots at the diesel locomotive and escaped with 15 sealed bags from the baggage car.

The bags were reported to have contained money destined for banks in Quebec City.

No passengers were molested but engineer W. Arnold of Richmond, Que., was slightly cut when the glass in his cab was shattered by a bullet.

A CNR spokesman said the company had been told the bags contained about $3,000 in small currency.

Station agent Paul Guimont, 40, his wife and five-year-old son were kept under guard in their living quarters in the station by two of the hold-up men.

After the holdup the men tossed the bags into a panel truck and drove off.

Kingsey, a town of about 200, is 70 miles northeast of Montreal on the Montreal-Quebec line.

was imminent. Another "proof," it said, was the state department's recommendation to U.S. dependents to leave the island.

THREE-WAY PLOT
The memorandum said the alleged invasion attempt had been plotted out by the U.S. State Department, the pentagon and "U.S. monopolies."

"According to reliable information in the possession of the Cuban authorities (it) will be attempted within the next few days," it said.

The Castro statement left unclear whether the alleged invasion was expected to be an official United States military operation with uniformed soldiers or an attack by private financial and moral support from the U.S. government.

Castro has charged many times he expects U.S. marines to attack Cuba.

The document said the alleged invasion plot and other alleged U.S. "aggressive designs" were based on "the mendacious pretext" that Cuba is a base of international communism.

The statement said the danger was all the more because Cuba allegedly was being made a part of overall U.S. strategy against the Soviet Union.

Tranquillizers Used
As 'Baby-Sitters'

TORONTO (CP)—The Star quotes a Toronto doctor as saying some physicians and parents are using tranquillizers as baby-sitters and some doctors are causing distress in children by their method of treatment.

It reports on an address today to the annual meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics by Dr. A. L. Chute, chief of pediatrics at the Hospital for Sick Children here.

Dr. Chute is quoted as saying that several children have been admitted to the hospital suffering from the tranquillizer poisoning.

Tranquillizers were being employed with little regard for their real and potential dangers, with even less to their possible dangers.

Children overtreated with these drugs developed a mild form of tetanus. There might be arching of the body, head-whirling sensations, inability to control facial muscles and inability to speak.

CHEST GIFTS 'COERCED'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Labor Council (CLC) ordered an investigation Tuesday night into accusations that four companies are coercing employees into donating to the Community Chest.

Richard Greaves of the National Association of Marine Engineers said four companies with which his union has contracts have made it a condition of employment for their workers to donate to the Chest, currently conducting its annual campaign.

He declined to name the four companies.

The Labor Council, at a regular meeting, criticized "intimidation and arbitrary methods" by the firms and ordered its welfare services committee to investigate.

Mr. Greaves said the management of one company ordered the bookkeeper to deduct $7.50 from the cheques of engineers and mates and $5 from seamen's cheques, to go to the chest. He said the men were not asked for permission.
